THE COREAN DIFFICULTY.

Origin of the Naval and Diplomatic Expedition—Letters and Dispatches of Consul-General Seward and the Secretary of State.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6.—The Navy Department does not expect to receive, until the 15th inst., dispatches from Corea, concerning the second day's fight, and the Department of State also expects, at that time, an official communication from Minister LOW. The preliminaries for an expedition to Corea was first brought to the attention of the Department of State in April, 1868, by Consul-General GEORGE F. SEWARD, at Shanghai. In his communication he said in his opinion there was no sufficient object attainable to render it advisable to use force, or even the show of force, to procure a commercial treaty with the Coreans. It might be considered, however, that the interests of our shipping require that at least a treaty providing for the kind treatment of shipwrecked people should be entered into; but if the Coreans were prepared to go to the extent of opening up their country to our merchants, that opportunity was not one which should be lost. The first object of a mission would be to procure information of the loss or destruction of the American schooner General Sherman, and in case the reports of the wrongful treatment of the crew prove correct, indemnity or satisfaction therefor. He added:

"On the other hand, there is something due from us to the Coreans. We should assure them of our respect for their kindness to the wrecked crew of the Surprise, in 1866; and disposed as we are, not only to assert our dignity, but as well our intent to deal justly, we cannot be indifferent to the propriety of offering to Corea an explanation of our views and conduct in regard to the recent expedition of an armed force for the purpose of exhuming and holding for ransom the remains of one or more scoundrels of that country in which one of our citizens has been charged as a leader. It is satisfactory to know that we have only to ask from Corea proof that the law dealt as honorably with the leader of the band as it has dealt with her in the latter matter. The settlement of the Sherman affair and a commercial treaty may, it seems to me, be obtained without great difficulty; but that a considerable show of force would probably be needed to secure a general treaty. But this, of course, is conjecture. The display of force, not its use, and not even intimations that it may be used, I know well there should be no irregular action, and that it will be time enough for the United States to determine on the exercise of force when peaceful efforts shall have been exhausted and all the circumstances broadly considered."

Other suggestions were made by Consul SEWARD, and he says that Admiral ROWAN had himself proposed to him that authority and instructions in their joint names to prosecute the mission should be applied for. On the 4th of April, 1870, Secretary FISH wrote a letter to Secretary ROBESON, in the conclusion of which he says:

"This Department is prepared to instruct the Minister of the United States at Pekin to open negotiations with the Government of Corea for the conclusion of such a treaty to regulate the treatment of shipwrecked seamen. It is thought best to instruct this duty to the diplomatic representative of the United States, instead of the Admiral of the fleet, because the usual relations between China and Corea are such as to make it desirable to first obtain the good will and possibly the good offices of the Chinese Government. * * * This Department thinks these instructions may be given to Admiral ROGERS, in advance of his communication with Mr. LOW soon after his arrival in Chinese waters, and agrees with him upon a time when he shall transport that gentleman to Corea. It is hoped that the expedition will be sufficiently formidable to make an impression upon the native authorities, and that Admiral ROGERS will accompany it in person. Mr. LOW will be instructed to correspond with and advise with him with the utmost frankness and confidence in every stage of the negotiations. Should, unhappily, any cause for hostilities occur during this mission, it is hoped that the Navy Department will instruct Admiral ROGERS, and Mr. LOW will advise with Mr. LOW, and to leave with this Department the responsibility of war or peace."

The letter of Secretary FISH to Minister LOW, dated April 20, 1870, is as follows:

SIR.—It has been decided to authorize negotiations to be had with the authorities of Corea, for the purpose of securing a treaty for the protection of shipwrecked mariners, and you are instructed that the conduct of the expedition to you, and the opportunity seem favorable for obtaining commercial advantages in Corea, the proposed treaty should include provisions to that effect; but the President principally aims in this mission to secure protection and good treatment to the seamen of the United States as may unhappily be wrecked upon those shores. The enclosed copies of the treaties concluded with Japan at Kanagawa in 1854, and at Yeddo in 1858, will serve to point out the kind of protection which you will seek to secure as well as the commercial articles which it may be desirable to enter into. These copies, together with the copies of dispatches from Consul-General SEWARD, which are inclosed, indicate fully what you are to endeavor to obtain. Little is known of the shores or internal wealth of Corea, or of the people who inhabit that country. Before leaving to carry out these instructions, you will endeavor in that way to gather all the information on these subjects that can be obtained at Pekin. Some political connection exists between China and Corea, which may make it advisable for you to secure in advance the good will and possibly the good offices of the Pekin Government. You will, of course, do whatever can be done in that way. Admiral ROGERS will receive instructions, a copy of which has been forwarded to you in my No. 8, from the Navy Department, to place at your disposal accommodation upon the flagship, and to accompany you himself upon this mission with a display of force adequate to support the dignity of this Government. You will maintain entire frankness and unreserve with Admiral ROGERS, conferring freely with him in every stage of the negotiations.

In arranging the time for carrying out these instructions, it is also desirable, if possible, to secure the presence and co-operation of Consul-General SEWARD, who has had great experience in Oriental character and who has made a study of this question. Admiral ROGERS has instructions to take this officer with him in case he returns to China before you are. It is not supposed here that you will be able to comply with these instructions before next year, in which case Mr. SEWARD will probably be at his post. It will also be necessary in making your arrangements to consult the convenience of Admiral ROGERS, and to defer to his superior knowledge of the best season for navigating those waters. The Department relies upon you in fulfilling these instructions, to exercise prudence and discretion to maintain firmly the right of the United States to have their seamen protected, to avoid a conflict by force unless it cannot be avoided without dishonor, and seek in all proper ways the harmonious and friendly assistance of the Chinese Government. You will keep an account of your necessary expenses in carrying out these instructions, and draw upon Messrs. BARING BROTHERS & Co., of London, for the amount thereof, and furnish the necessary vouchers therefor.

(Signed.) HAMILTON FISH.

The above are believed to be the only general instructions on the subject since the date of April 20, 1870.

UNITED ITALY.

A Brilliant Demonstration in San Francisco—Occupation of Rome—No Interruption.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The Italian demonstration in honor of the occupation of Rome by King VICTOR EMMANUEL took place today. Perfect order and quiet prevailed. The procession was one of the most brilliant and tasteful ever seen here. No inscriptions calculated to wound the religious feelings of the Catholics were visible. The Italian and American flags were carried side by side in each division. The German and Swiss rifle companies also carried their national flags. A temple of liberty, with young ladies dressed in national colors, representing United Italy, a full-rigged fulness and a car, representing Rome, surmounted by a sculptured group representing the wolf suckling ROMULUS and REMUS, were among the finest features of the procession. The Police had made extra preparations, but there was not the slightest necessity for their interference.

THE ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

Meeting of the Committee of Arrangements—Letter from Mayor Hall Declining to Review the Procession—Swiss and Polish Sympathy—Mass-Meeting To-Night.

As the reunion and mass-meeting of Italians is to be held this evening, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, the meeting of the General Committee of Arrangements for the Italian unity celebration (whose regular night for meeting is Monday) was held last evening, at the house of Mr. P. PRAMMAGGIORE, No. 407 Broome-street. It was fully attended by the Committee, Prof. N. CORRADI in the chair, and the deliberations were of a more than usually enthusiastic character. President CORRADI, reporting as Chairman of the Committee who waited upon the Mayor, said that upon returning to his home yesterday afternoon he found at the Mayor's office. he had found a communication which he read to the meeting. It is as follows, and elicited no comments:

SATURDAY, Aug. 5, 1871.

MY DEAR SIR: I have an especial reason, arising out of and connected with the recent official action I took in connection with processions, which obliges me to decline your invitation. If I was at liberty to state them you would, or any gentleman would, appreciate and accept them. I bear to assure you, however, that this refusal is not unfriendly nor disrespectfully intended. Indeed it is quite possible that, except in military matters, I may feel called upon to consistently decline, and always with thanks for the intended compliment, reviewing civic processions while I am Mayor.

Very sincerely yours,

A. OAKEY HALL.

Signor N. CORRADI, No. 24 Third-avenue.

Ex-Col. CHABEL, of the Italian Army, then read the following letter from the Swiss General Mutual and Benevolent Society, which at its close was loudly applauded:

NEW-YORK, Aug. 5, 1871.

Messrs Corradi, &c., President of the Committee of Arrangements for the Italian Festival "Roma Capitale":

HONORED SIR: The Swiss General Society feels greatly honored at the invitation which the Italian Committee of which you are the President were good enough to extend to them yesterday evening and, soon after you left it was called to serious consideration and discussed by the whole Society. Amid the gloom which was cast over us on account of the terrible loss which our Society had sustained of several of its members, to whom we had just paid the last earthly honors, your visit for such a heart-stirring and noble object as the honoring of us with the request of our co-operation in your celebration of "Roma Capitale" came quite timely, to make some little diversion to the train of our saddest thoughts, and we cannot but thank you for the kindness you had to remember our grieving Society. That the Italian nation has at last, after so many noble struggles and sacrifices, filled the measure of her national aspirations and constituted her unity with the proclamation of the Eternal City which rightfully belonged to her, cannot but fill with joy any right-minded being; and the Swiss Society feels so very deeply. I would almost dare say as deeply and sincerely as the most patriotic Italian himself may. Many of our countrymen have laid down their lives on the battle-fields of Lombardy, struggling and fighting with the Italian patriots for your liberation. Animated as we are with such feelings, you may well imagine how much real pleasure it would afford our Society to join you in your patriotic celebration, and how shrunken we feel in not being able to do so. Article 2 of our by-laws, of which we take the liberty of handing you a copy herewith, forbids us to take any participation in political and religious demonstrations. Therefore the Society was compelled, after a thorough discussion of the subject, and much against our real wishes, to lay your kind invitation on the table to be taken up at a future day, but not without first passing a unanimous resolution moved by citizen BARDA, (Tessin, land which was carried amid the wildest enthusiasm, to the effect that we should refer to your Committee and to the Italian nation the congratulations of the Swiss General Society, for the acquirement of your capital.

We have the honor to remain, Sir, with respect and high regards, your obedient servants,

W. P. MOLO, President.

RUDOLPH HOTZ, First Vice-Secretary.

After the reading of this letter, reports of Committees were received. That of the Committee on Printing states that CAV. SECCHI DE CASALI, editor of L'Eco d'Italia, besides a liberal subscription to the general fund, offers to the Committee the use of his journal and pecuniary assistance

The Literary World—Mr. Oliphant's Predilections—Theatrical Gossip—The Operatic Season—Remarkable Murder Cases—Odds and Ends.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, July 22.

New books are announced by Mr. ROBERT BROWNING and Mr. CHARLES READE. That by the former is entitled Balaustion's Adventure, while Mr. READE'S novel is A Terrible Temptation; or, Tale of the Times. Another curious volume, The Mystery for Family, is to reveal startling revelations as to the late Imperial Court in contemplation. Mr. LAWRENCE OLIPHANT, who has lately been actively employed in connection with the Jews in Palestine, has lately written to contradict a report that he had ceased to be a member of the Community at Brocton. "I am very happy," he says, "to be able to assure you that I have not separated myself from Brocton, that I have felt myself in more close and intimate union with it than now, and that, however, God helping me, will separate myself from it, no matter where the work to which I am engaged may take me, or whatever character its external form may assume, for in that, in common harmony with the life there and working for the same ends as those who are there, and in connection with them, that I should feel any satisfaction, I might almost say, any possibility, in living." It seems to be now said on all sides that Mr. OLIPHANT is the author of the Coming Race. There is a strong feeling in some quarters very just article upon DICKENS, by his mother, Mrs. OLIPHANT, in this month's Blackwood. It is very severe on the affectation in the last days of the novelist.

THE OPERA AND THEATRES.

On Thursday Signor MARIO bade farewell to the operatic stage, in consequence of the decay of his voice, and had a most enthusiastic, and even affecting, greeting from the audience. He was called six or seven times before the curtain, amid a shower of wreaths and bouquets, the whole house rising and cheering, and some waving handkerchiefs. Afterward a handsome testimonial was presented to him by a number of old friends, professional associates, and other admirers. There can be no doubt that his retirement leaves a great blank in an important class of operatic parts. His exquisite voice was matched with histrionic gifts of the highest kind; and there is much to be said for the suggestion that as his voice is broken, while his powers as an actor are as perfect as ever, he should, instead of absolutely quitting the boards, transfer himself from the operatic to the dramatic stage. The latter is sadly in want of some one who can make love without looking like an idiot. It appears that since his first appearance on the 6th June, 1839—it was Mme. GRISI's benefit—he has appeared on 925 different occasions in London. His repertory consisted of forty different parts, divided among fourteen composers. The operas in which he appeared most frequently were those by DONIZETTI, (72 times,) MEYERBEER, (170,) ROSSINI, (148,) and VERDI, (112.)

END OF THE SEASON.

Both our operas are winding up the season, which, except for MARIO's farewell performances, and PATTI's continued triumphs, (to the list of which Lucrezia, in "Trovatore," must now be added,) and the appearance of Mlle. MORLEON, at Drury Lane, have presented little worthy of remark. MARIMON has, unquestionably, a sweet and very capable voice, but her profound hoarseness has sadly limited the number of her performances. Indeed, she has sung in only two operas, "The Daughter of the Regiment" and "Sonnambula." The more rollicking part in the former seems to suit her best. A good many of our theatres are also closing, and there is nothing new of any consequence at any of them. A melodrama from your side of the Atlantic, called "Across the Continent, or Scenes from New-York Life and the Pacific Railroad," has been brought out at the Royal Alfred, one of the suburban theatres. It has been pretty well received, but has not had much effect as yet on Pacific shares. Miss KATE FIELD is to give a private reading at the Haymarket Theatre next week.

A FEAST OF HORRORS.

We have had a feast of horrors. The assizes at the Old Bailey have been distinguished by several disagreeable murder cases, which the newspapers, glad to have something sensational to fill up the blank caused by the suspension of the Tichborne trial, have reported at considerable length. First, there was the Eltham murder. A young servant-girl is found dying and horribly mutilated in a country lane, and dies shortly afterward. Her head had been smashed almost out of recognition by a hammer. When she was last seen, she had told a friend that she was going to see her young man, by whom she had been seduced, and who was her child's son. This fastened suspicion on the young man—POOK by name, a painter, and sort of free professional singer at music halls—who was arrested and brought to trial. The Police evidence raged the case shamefully, and either did a cruel injury to an innocent person by arresting him without proper evidence of a horrible crime, or else allowed the links of evidence to slip through their fingers. When the case came before the Chief Justice, there was really nothing whatever to connect the prisoner with the murder. The jury acquitted him and the public accepted that local opinion was of a different sort and for three days the house of the prisoner's father was surrounded by an angry mob, who pursued and hooted and exhibited effigies of the young fellow and his supposed victim, the former being represented in the act of murdering her. The other case was that of Mr. MEON by his mistress, who stabbed him in a fit of passion with a poultry-carver which she snatched from the dinner table. She was evidently a violent, distempered woman, and rather addicted to stimulants. She was found guilty of manslaughter, not murder, and sentenced to eight years' imprisonment. The most remarkable feature of the case was the very "mixed" character of the society of which the lady was the centre, and their odd ignorance of or indifference to her peculiar relations with different gentlemen who frequented her house, the rent of which was paid by one friend, while another obligingly lent her his name and passed her off as his wife, though she had a real husband living. And then there was the case of the young nurse-girl, who has been convicted of murdering a child intrusted to her, having previously thrown a host of mantle-tie killing kittens, gold-fish, canaries, and all animals which came within her reach. Sentence has been deferred, in order that her sanity may be inquired into.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Here are one or two odds and ends, just to give a general notion of doings in England. The volunteer camp at Wimbledon has been formed this week, and in spite of the bad weather there is a considerable muster, and the shooting has also been unusually good, this being partly due, I suppose, to the volunteers being now armed with breech-loaders, (converted Enfield.) We are still disputing, at least some of us are, whether the world is round or flat. Not long since a man named HAMPDEN offered to lay a wager of £500 that it was flat. Mr. ALFRED WALLACE, the naturalist, and President of the Entomological Society, accepted the bet and won it, the award being, of course, in his favor. HAMPDEN, enraged at the loss of his money, has ever since been pursuing Mr. WALLACE with threatening letters, and has also published a great many books. To Mrs. WALLACE he wrote:

MADAM: If your infernal thief of a husband is brought home some day on a hurdle with every bone in his body smashed to a pulp, you will know for what reason. Do you tell him from me he is a liar, infernal thief, and as sure as his name is WALLACE he never dies in his bed. You must be a miserable wretch to be obliged to live with a convicted felon. Do not think, or let him think I have done with him.

JOHN HAMPDEN.

In addition, addressed to the Committee of the Entomological Society, he described Mr. WALLACE as "a rogue and impostor." The Magistrates regarded Mr. HAMPDEN as a bad subject, and bound him over in £50, and himself in £100, to keep the peace, and he was locked up till he found them. ....As a significant incident in the education movement, it may be noticed that the employers of labor at Histon, an agricultural village near Cambridge, have determined to carry out the principle of "moral compulsion" with reference to the attendance of children at school, and have agreed to the following rules, in order to carry out the instructions of Government. Children under ten years of age will not be taken unless they can read and write, and pass examples in the four simple rules of arithmetic, and from all children above ten and up to eleven years of age the four compound rules of arithmetic will be required in addition. A certificate of qualification signed by the managers of the school must be produced by all children applying for employment....A horrible story recently came out at an inquest at Leyton, near London. A railway clerk named FRANCE, and his wife, used occasionally to shut themselves in their house for a drinking bout. Lately he had a little money left him, and for a fortnight neither he nor his wife were seen out of doors. That terrible quiet was seen going to and from the public-house for gin, but would give no information. The boy went next door to get some food, and said his father was lying on the floor asleep, and his face black. At last the neighbors forced the doors and found FRANCE lying dead, having evidently died the day proposed date of the body, been dead some days. Mrs. FRANCE was in bed in a miserable condition, and died soon after. She said she had drunk nearly a pint of gin worth of liquor in a day, and ascribed her husband's death to a fall on the previous Friday. The deceased's friends state that they had known the Frances to be drunk for six weeks or more.

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Westfield Boiler.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Among the many conflicting opinions put forth as to the cause of the Westfield boiler explosion, the true initial cause, viz., the weakness of the boiler and its insecurity to resist a slight surplus pressure beyond its intended working pressure, seems to be often lost sight of or ignored altogether. That this was the real primary cause, and no other, is proved by many facts. That the safety-valve was in proper action, blowing off steam immediately before the explosion took place, is proved by several witnesses. No indication of any extraordinary sudden increase of pressure within the boiler immediately before the explosion was observed by any one, nor indicated by the gauge or safety-valve. The appearance of such a cause pressure would have been unmistakable. All, therefore, that has been surmised as regards extraordinary pressure on the boiler immediately before the explosion is imaginary. The enormous destructive force of the explosion was generated immediately after the fracture or rupture—not before—by the sudden liberation of so large a volume of water, surcharged with probably over 200° of heat, which at once expanded into steam with a force due to that temperature. The water does not instantaneously flash into steam, as is supposed by some. It takes some seconds to acquire its full destructive force, varying with the size of the aperture or fracture and effluent volume. This is proved by the promontory hissing sound first heard, and the propelling or rocket-like force with which the two parts of the boiler went off.

A still more remarkable proof of this being the fact came under my notice in 1869. A multitubular boiler, 12 feet in length, 6 feet diameter, employed in a manufacturing works heated by the waste products of a furnace, loaded to a pressure of fifty pounds per square inch, suddenly exploded, with the steam-gauge indicating only forty-seven pounds pressure. This being the working pressure used, safety-valve in good order, blowing off seldom resorted to in order to avoid waste. The primary cause of the explosion was found to be a defective plate at one end, worn away by corrosion to barely one-sixteenth of an inch thick, from a small but neglected leak at the joints where the feed-water entered the bottom of the boiler, and which was hidden from view by masonry. The first effect of the plate giving way was witnessed by several bystanders and workmen, one of whom was killed on the spot and two wounded. The boiler rose from its seat in the masonry, the whole end then blew out by the force generated by the sudden liberation of superheated effluent water, exploding into steam, and was driven through a brick wall eighteen inches thick, and afterward propelled some 180 feet into the yard of the premises. This explosion arose, in like manner, solely from the defective state of the boiler itself, and from neglect of proper precautions to guard against disease. Safety-valves would not have averted this catastrophe, for the primary local rupture was effected on the damaged plate by the mere working pressure of the boiler, which in an otherwise sound condition, had a general strength represented by a bursting pressure of over two hundred pounds per square inch. Many similar instances could be named. The remedy for the Westfield boiler must have been imminent for some time from the original low standard of general strength upon which it was constructed. In the modern application of steam in its economical sense, the old terms of high and low pressure are misleading; thence, first to sixty pounds' pressure is safe enough for common steam vessels. The destructive effects arising from the explosion of boilers at the comparatively low pressure of twenty to twenty-five pounds per square inch has for some years past aroused the attention of all connected with the use of steam. It was at first assumed that a boiler could not burst unless the safety-valve to be in proper order) if there was sufficient water to cover the heating surface, hence arose the red-hot plate theory of explosion, which proved in many cases of careful investigation to be not only an imaginary fact, but an incorrect theory. The other theory, accounting for the explosion by explaining that water coming in contact with a surface of gases, especially a component of atmospheric air and steam, which was supposed in like manner, to have the most destructive effects. This has likewise been abandoned as a fallacy.

It has been proved beyond doubt that the greater the quantity of water in a boiler at the time of explosion, the more destructive is the effect, and vice versa. There was a very large proportion of water in the Westfield boiler at the time of explosion, the top gauge-cock indicating water. In boilers designed to hold a very small quantity of water in proportion to their heating surfaces explosions have been proved to be comparatively harmless. No. 3 engine, Jersey City, may be mentioned as a type of this class. The weak points of the Westfield boiler are:

1. The shell, of ten feet diameter, which is only of one-quarter-inch plate single-riveted, longitudinally and vertically.

2. The stays, which should hold the shell together, of which that to take a great part of the whole longitudinal strain is unfit for the purpose.

The diagonal stays do not connect the two great flat surface ends of the boilers together. The stud or short stays connecting the fire-cap with the back end of the boiler are merely fastened with a thin plate without any nuts or rivets to transmit their strength, thus throwing an enormous and undue strain on the vertical seams of rivets. When the boiler was new these stays were no doubt comparatively effective, but in course of time, with stress and corrosion, their useful effect would be very materially diminished. Any engineer practically experienced with the subject on examining this boiler must come to the same conclusion. As to the iron or rivets the boiler is made, it must have been throughout of very superior quality, from the mere fact alone that it has withstood nine years of harder strain and stress than should have been put on it, till Sunday last, without failure.

The Druggists' Examination.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of Sunday last, I noticed a communication signed "Physician," in which the writer states "that he is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons; has been keeping a drug-store for the last fifteen years, and is still employed in the same business." He has been notified to attend examination, in view of ascertaining his competency to dispense medicines and prepare physicians' prescriptions, on account of which he enters complains; and asks the following question: "Of what use to me is my diploma if they can fine or imprison me, (or both, at their option) for dispensing medicine, that being my license for so doing?" Now, Mr. Editor, if you will allow me space for this article in your noble anti-Tammany Hall paper, I should like to answer his query in as few words as possible. His diploma (I have one of the same kind) is given to him as a license to practice the profession of medicine and surgery, he is taught in relation to medicines their place of growth, mode of preparing for the market, different preparations as kept in the stores, their doses and applications to different diseases. He is also learned the art of writing prescriptions correctly, but the mode of preparing them is left to the druggist. No, Sir, the law has no more right to call himself a competent druggist, and asked to be exonerated from examination, while others druggists have to go through with it, than I have to call myself a first-class lawyer, because I graduated and have a diploma discussing me to administer an arm or leg, or perform other operations which we are called upon to do. I think most, or, I might say, all physicians will agree with me in saying, that we are not graduated as druggists or drug clerks, and if any of you gro-

ANOTHER HUGE SWINDLE.

The Harlem Court-House Another Mine of Wealth.

The Ring Again Cramming its Pockets.

A Half Million Dollars Expended on Common Foundation Walls—Two Years' Work and Little to Show for It—How the Tax-Payers are to be Fleeced.

The Ring is building another Court-house on Manhattan Island, which, if not as pretentious in its appearance, promises to be almost as costly as the marble edifice on Chambers-street. Its walls will be of simple brick, with here and there a common blue-stone trimming, but the dollars that will pay for it may be counted by the millions, when it shall have been completed, carpeted, and furnished. It is to be located in Harlem, and TWEED is its projector. The story of its conception, and the progress of its construction thus far, is easily told.

THE OLD COURT-HOUSE.

In 1869 there was some domestic difficulty in a branch of one of the well-known families of this City. Their property came into Court, and subsequently "the Book" measured to purchase it low, as will be seen by the following record of the transfer:

June 11, 1869, Thomas R. Langdon (Referee) to Wm. M. Tweed; Fourth-avenue, south-west corner, one Hundred and Twenty-ninth-street; Nassau Map..... $52,320

Sept. 15, 1869, Thomas R. Langdon (Referee) to Wm. M. Tweed; One Hundredth and Twenty-eighth-street, south side, 100 feet west of Fourth-avenue, 40x100..... 12,000

Total..... $64,320

LOCATION OF THE PROPERTY.

After the Ring had obtained possession of the property he next leased a part of it to the City for a Court-room "in the Ninth Judicial District," and JOSEPH POTTER and JOHN MCCOADY found employment there as Judges, the one in the Civil Court and the other in the Criminal. (ALFRED TWEED was made a chief clerk.) Then the Ring found it expedient, for his own interest principally, to have the property improved at the public expense, and hence in the Tax Levy of 1870 is found the following:

CHAPTER 385.

An Act to make further provision for the government of the City of New-York. Passed April 26, 1870.

SECTION 1. ... for furnishing and altering in the Ninth District Civil and Police Courts-house, for the sum of three hundred thousand dollars.

The whole of National Hall has been elegantly improved, and an extension has been erected, which, in the opinion of an expert who has examined it, the old building is unable to hold up, and consequently there is a parting between the old and the new, which is neither safe nor agreeable. When this was discovered, it was resolved to erect a new Court-house, and so a law, as follows, was framed:

CHAPTER 410.

An Act to provide for a Police Court-house in the Ninth Judicial District in the City of New-York. Passed April 26, 1870.

SECTION 1. The Commissioners of Public Works of New-York, (WILLIAM M. TWEED,) together with the Police Justice and Justice of the District Court elected in and for the Ninth District of the City of New-York, shall be Commissioners to locate and erect within the limits of said Ninth Judicial District a suitable building, to be used as a Court-house and office for the transaction of business through the Police-courts in said district. The said Commissioners, or a majority of their number, shall have power to perform any act required to be performed by them under the provisions of this act, and shall furnish and complete such building, with such superintendence, shall be the property of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York.

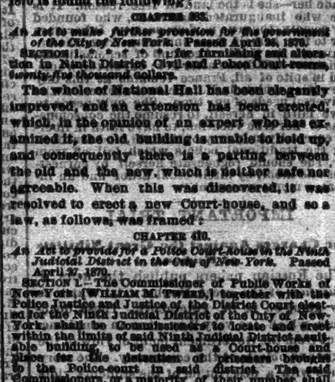
SEC. 2. The said Commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to purchase the necessary lands for the purpose aforesaid, on the westerly side of Third-avenue, as widened and laid out, between One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street and One Hundred and Twenty-ninth-street, and to erect thereon a building for the purpose herein designated.

SEC. 3. For the performance of and duty the Commissioners may require the necessary assistants, for which payment shall be made by the Controller of said City, in the usual manner for similar payments for like purposes, upon vouchers to be approved by said Commissioners, or a majority of their number; provided, however, that while engaged to be incurred in executing the provisions of this act, in addition to the amount required for the purchase of the site shall not exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, and the Board of Supervisors of the County of New-York are hereby directed to levy and raise by tax for such purpose, in the year 1870, in the manner provided by law, upon the taxable real and personal estate within said City, subject by law to taxation, such sum as may be found necessary to pay for such real estate, and the further sum of one hundred thousand dollars for the erection of the necessary buildings thereon for said Court-house and House of Detention. And said building shall be completed within two years from the date of the approval of this act.

SEC. 4. So much of such premises as may be set apart for the detention of prisoners shall be maintained and controlled by the Commissioners of Charities and Correction in the City of New-York.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect immediately.

Under this authorization the first act of the Commissioners was to purchase a site for the new building, which they selected as follows:



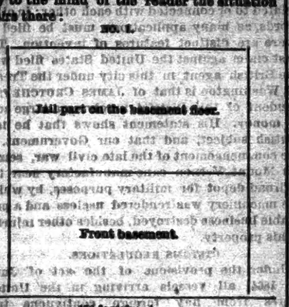
The deed on record is to the effect that the property was purchased on the 8th of September, 1870, from A. S. WIDART, for $24,000. It is described as follows:

"Beginning at a point on the southerly side of One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street, distant 150 feet easterly from the south-eastern corner of Sixth-avenue, as widened and said One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street; thence running southerly parallel with Sixth-avenue, 99 feet 11 inches to the centre line of the block; thence westerly and parallel with One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street, 150 feet; thence northerly and again parallel with Sixth-avenue, 99 feet 11 inches to One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street; thence easterly along the northerly side of One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street 150 feet to the place of beginning, being the same premises conveyed to the said party of the first part by EBENEZER H. BROWN and wife by deed dated July 7, 1870."

RECONNOITERING THE ENEMY'S WORKS.

Yesterday a TIMES reporter was despatched to the scene of the new swindle. He found only a few men at work—some under a beer contractor named SCALLEN, from the upper part of the west side of the City and the remainder under it was difficult to tell who. In the time-keeper's office there was a fine drawing of the front of the projected building. After studying this a short time, the reporter went out to see what proportion of the house was completed. The following diagrams will more quickly and thoroughly show words can do it convey to the mind of the reader the situation of affairs there:

NO. 1.



Not even the foundation for this basement floor is yet fully completed. There are some heavy piers to build, and also some inferior walls.

NO. 2.—FRONT ELEVATION.

None of the above has yet been commenced.

NO. 3.—SIDE ELEVATION, EAST WARD.

NO. 4.—REAR.

Thus it will be seen that scarcely anything more than the foundations and basement walls have been run up, which is a very small proportion of the building. If it took two years of time and a half million dollars in money to do so little, when will it be completed, and how much will it cost?

WHAT THE ARCHITECT SAYS.

Inquiries as to who the architect was elicited the information that he came from Connecticut, and that his name was GAGE INSLEE. A dive into the new directory, and the reporter discovered that he had an office somewhere skyward in a building on the corner of Broadway and Eighth-street. A visit to that locality proved that the directory was correct.

An Act to amend Chapter Four Hundred and Ten of the Laws of Eighteen Hundred and Seventy, entitled "An Act to provide for a Police Court-house in the Ninth Judicial District in the City of New-York." Passed March 7, 1871.

SECTION 1. The Commissioner of the City of New-York hereby authorized and directed to cause to be issued Bonds of the City of New-York, pursuant to the provisions of section 1 of this act, to the amount of Ninth District Court-house Bonds of the City of New-York," shall bear interest at the rate of seven per centum per annum, and shall be redeemable in not less than ten or more than fifty years as the said Commissioners shall determine to be for the best interests of said City, and the Board of Supervisors of the County of New-York is hereby authorized and directed to levy and raise in the same manner as other taxes, and by tax upon the estates, real and personal, subject to taxation in the City and County of New-York, the sum or sums of money which shall be required to pay the interest on said bonds, and to redeem them at maturity. The Mayor and Commissioner of said City are hereby authorized and directed to issue such bonds, such bonds shall not be disposed of for less than par value thereof, and in all to the City of the Chamberlain of the Common Council to countersign the same and affix the seal of the City thereto.

He is building a fine yacht costing not less than twenty thousand dollars; he is a man of taste, and has all things in keeping as becomes a first-class Tammany man.

Queens County Republican Central Committee.

On Saturday the Queens County Republican Central Committee met at the office of L. BRADFORD, and the following basis of town representation was agreed to, which is to be determined each year according to the number of votes cast on the State ticket: One delegate for each 100 Republican votes, and one for each fraction of a hundred, over fifty. According to this apportionment the following will be the number of delegates allowed to the several towns in the County and District Convention: Flushing, 9; Hempstead, 11; North Hempstead, 6; Jamaica, 8; Oyster Bay, 7; Newtown, 7; Long Island City, 4. The following resolution has unanimously passed:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Committee in common with all good citizens, irrespective of party, are due to the NEW-YORK TIMES for its moral and fearless course in denouncing the extravagance and corruption of the Tammany Ring, which now misgoverns New-York.

The European Insurance Company.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Observing your article on the "European Life, Fire and Guarantee Fidelity Society," of England, permit me to say, in fairness to American life insurance institutions, that our corporations are under entirely different supervision. The European Company was started with 400,000 shares of £5 10s. sterling each, and only 10 shillings sterling paid in on each share, and this concern has been guaranteeing men's honesty and doing fire and life business together, and I have known for the past four years that their shares were sold on the London Exchange at 4 shillings sterling and less per share, which originally was paid in 10 shillings sterling, and the Company has been allowed to go on for four or five years past, when it should have been wound up. My position, knowledge, and some experience with both European and American underwriting, has caused me to ask you to notice the fact through the columns of your journal. We shall endeavor, in our own American companies, to make each year a surer test of safety, and let our people see we can and will hold two billions of sacred funds with fidelity and safety.

Why Was this Man Not Tried?

Many of the readers of this paper may remember that on the 26th day of July, 1870, a little more than a year ago, GEORGE BYRNE, an assistant clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen, was arrested at and on the complaint of MARGARET FIELDING, who charged him with having committed a criminal assault on her person. The case was investigated in the First Judicial Court, before Justice HOGAN. The chief witness, MARGARET FIELDING, deposed that on the 25th day of July she went to the City Hall to find a Mr. BURNS, who had formerly been connected with the Commissioners of Quarry and Correction. She went to the Mayor's office, and a person there told her that there was a clerk of that name in the office of the Board of Aldermen. She went there, entered, and on asking for Mr. BURNS, he was accosted by GEORGE BYRNE, who said that he answered to that name. The woman explained that he was not the gentleman she wished to see, who was a Mr. BURNS. "I'll show you where Mr. BURNS' office is," he replied, getting up and leaving the room. MARGARET FIELDING followed him into the Chamber of the Assistant the sewer crossed it, and so intercepting with a dam the water, instead of following its natural course, broke the heavy culvert in the middle of the road in a black, noisome pool, which is half-covered with boards, to protect people from falling in on dark nights. At least this is what has been done at the foot of Eighteenth-street, which the contractor has opened by order of the Department of Public Works. At the foot of Seventeenth-street a similar stale-hole presents itself for the delectation of the eyes and nose. Seventeenth-street is the only part of the work which gives the slightest hope that it is even with its finished surface, for a short distance, at the discharge of the brisk shower-pipe has been laid, and it is gone, for a short distance, covered in. The street, however, is to indiscriminate manhood, and the old sewer, being clogged, has thrown a stagnant pool of black water out on Tenth-avenue, which has clothed the curb-stone and piles of timber on the sidewalk with a rich green slime, and has made the whole neighborhood its neighbors on the next avenue in the foulness of its exhalations.

The Gas Company and Untimed men of Eleventh-avenue and the thinking streets have been so the Department of Docks to consolidate at this unique time after time, but all to no purpose. They can be to the end of the well-known story that Boodman was appointed by the old Croton Board, and that the Department is not responsible for his doings. They have been to BOODMAN with no better result. He promised with great readiness, but proceeded to do nothing. There was a chance about time ago, before he went into his present business, and all who have observed the matter are unanimous in saying that he entered his contracts with the intention of not carrying them out. He is a contractor, a fine which in plain do anybody who pays his work in the streets. This fact is obvious enough, and is the true secret both of Boodman's present position and of the general slowness of the Croton Department.

Seventh-avenue, for instance, is accurately blocks up the month at the old sewer, with heaving, and a heavy storm happening to come on, would be sure to flood the cellars of the houses. Yet only were collars filled seven feet deep in the meadows, the water was two feet deep in the basements of many of the low-lying houses. Pumps were brought from all parts of the City next day to clear out the hungry, and from some of the houses the water has not yet departed. Here, again, the work is at exorbitant prices—the per foot for the Seventh-avenue work, with allowance of 50 per foot more for lumber; Riverside-avenue, for instance, is charged with an assurance of 50 per foot for the same lumber, and all for pieces of work which these prices, an experienced contractor states that the work could have been done, with a profit of $200,000 on the job, six months, he thinks, ought to have finished it. It is singular that the work should be strongest along in this way, as to the need there is no excuse for the delay, for a number of jobs could be pursued, the laborers driving their wages all the time without doing any work. Another singular thing about BOODMAN'S precious case is that he never has any money though his pay is so high, and has several times been bolstered in his house by the Commissioners, who have had to find good excuses said, as though BOODMAN was "a man of money" with some Ring man behind him, and another said of him: "It is the general opinion that the man can't do it, or won't do it," or that the place is kept as a "nest to colonize Tammany voters on."

The Times reporter found the contractor at his house and Mr. BOODMAN said a sad story of how Tammany inspectors were fleeced upon him at $4 a day each, and of what he had to contend against, and readily promised to finish the whole work in one year. He has only partly done Seventeenth-street, however, and just begun on Twentieth-street. Only two of the gas-lamps are fixed on the whole distance on the Seventh-avenue, so it does not seem probable that he will be able to finish that promptly. Bruce Tenth-avenue, from Fourteenth to Seventeenth street, Eleventh-avenue, from Seventeenth to Twenty-first street, and the same avenue, from Twenty-first to Twenty-third street, remain almost untouched; and, taking prospect is that of the present rate of progress these thoroughfares will not be open for travel in five years.

THE VOICE OF THE PRESS.

From the Providence Journal.

The New-York Times and Harper's Weekly are rendering eminent service to the cause of good government and of public virtue in the vigorous assaults which they have made upon the unparalleled corruptions and rascalities of the New-York Ring. It is no singular or inexplicable, it is an evidently bad policy or it is bad morals, the silence of some of the Republican journals and leaders in this State and the anchems of Tammany.

Albany Evening Journal.

THE TIMES has done precisely that which it promised to do, viz: made an exposure of the municipal corporations of the Canada Court house." It has shown how much it has cost, and who have been paid for labor and materials which would have been exceedingly high for an honest job, per cent. of the sum charged. Having done much in route to save, but by no means all the prosecution. The TIMES wants to see him in possession of more of the money relating to payments made by the Ring. Let it follow up the matter, and the public will be duly gratified. The bottom of the accounts has by no means been reached as yet.

Raleigh (N. C.) Sentinel.

The New-York TIMES has published a long list of private accounts that were passed upon, signed and paid by Mayor HALL and Controller CONNOLLY, which show that frauds of the most gigantic character—exceeding, by far, those of WINTER and LITTLEFIELD—have been perpetrated by the Democratic officials who control the City. The Mayor and Controller are denounced by the TIMES as thieves and scoundrels. The charges made by the TIMES have not been refuted.

Newberry (S. C.) Times.

In due course to light, and is clearly shown, that the Ring at charge of the City Government of New-York have swindled the citizens out of the enormous sum of $1,000,000 in little items, such as carpets, plumbing, plastering, &c., daily expenses, to a little over two years, stolen in little things!

Brooklyn Union.

This request for the appointment of a Committee, in place of a full publication of the Controller's accounts, as was promised, bears on its face every evidence of fraudulent design, and can be neither interpreted nor explained upon any other hypothesis than that of self-conscious guilt.

Jersey City Times.

Mayor HALL and Controller CONNOLLY have written a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, asking that body to appoint a committee to examine the accounts of the City in detail. If any question could be worse than those already practised by "Slippery Dick" said his "pal," this would be the one. What the people want is to have the figures refused, so that everybody can see and have explained to them the items in which the City's funds. They have a wholesome distrust of voluntary investigating committees.

Baltimore American.

The persistence of Mayor HALL and Controller CONNOLLY in "dodging the issue." The resolution of the Board of Trade of New-York, asking an examination of the accounts, to see if there is reason for the charges of the Municipal Government of New-York. Until OAKEY HALL, TWEED & Co. consent to the investigation proposed by the TIMES, public opinion will certainly take journal in its course.

Hartford Courant.

Mayor HALL and Controller CONNOLLY, of New-York, are coming the various indignation dodge. They have exhausted apologies for the non-appearance of the promised "blue book;" and now say that a committee "as appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to look over the accounts in the Controller's office, and 'report on their condition and that of the public credit of the City." The latter is not called in question, for leaders know the almost exhaustless resources of the City, and it is rugged in its cover the real issue. The proposition that certain business men shall devote the days necessary to a thorough examination, when the whole community could investigate the printed accounts, is novel to say the least.

Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph.

During last Winter's campaign various reports were current indicating a pretty close relationship between the most active Democratic leaders in this State and the anchems of Tammany. Many Republicans were forced to believe that the Democratic State Committee was well supplied with funds, and nobody seemed to doubt that Tammany was the banker who discounted so freely. After the election had determined the extreme closeness of the Legislature a gentleman informed us that while in New-York one day he casually overheard a remark dropped by a bowl by a New-Yorker, who was not a Republican, which in substance conveyed to him the intelligence that the Legislature would be organized by the Democrats and that Tammany would contribute fifty thousand dollars, if necessary, to insure that result.

Boston Commonwealth.

The New-York TIMES continues its unrelenting war on the financial swindles of the Tammany leaders. It looks as if these worthies were driven to shear wits and to find an excuse or cover for their gigantic thefts. But without avail.

Albany Evening Journal.

THIS is the way the World finds back defiance into the teeth of the outraged people of the metropolis. No matter of what stripe the "local Ring" may have been guilty—no matter how much of the people's money may have been stolen by connivance of HALL, CONNOLLY, FIELDS & Co.—they still "remain immovably in power" for eighteen months to come). But is that necessary? May they not be resisted now? May they not be removed now? Are they "immovably in power," for they are not yet superior to law, although they are in daily violation of it. They may be impeached.

Boston Times.

We have watched carefully every word made public by the Tammany leaders and their friends in answer to the charges of the New-York TIMES. In every case there has been an effort to evade, but no disposition to come squarely up to the points on which the TIMES demands investigation.

Schenectady (Whig Pa.) State Journal.

The New-York TIMES has sprung a mine under that famous den of thieves in New-York City known as the Tammany Ring, which bids fair to scatter that corrupt organization to the four winds of heaven.

Cincinnati Commercial.

The Tammany Ring of New-York, whose terrible swindling has just been displayed and demonstrated by the publication of their fraudulent accounts, is the Ring which had laid out for itself the job of nominating the Democratic candidate for the Presidency next year.

Auburn (Whig) Times.

A fine unadulterated Democratic rule, such as they have in New-York City, is a luxury that tax-payers would prefer not to enjoy. The New-YORK TIMES is unearthing some of the work of Tammany rule, and the results are perfectly astonishing.

Springfield Republican.

The Boston Post joins with the "Ring" papers of New-York in the laudable endeavor to break the force of the recent disclosures of municipal corruption by the New-YORK TIMES, by abusing the national Administration of the Republicans. There is no real defense for the rascalities of the Ring, and the Post is forced to follow the advice of the shrewd lawyer, and abuse, not the plaintiff's attorney, indeed, but the political party with which the plaintiff happens to be identified. It is a sufficient answer to this abuse to say that the debt of New-York City, now $84,541,186, has increased $60,186,186 in the twenty-eight months of Democratic rule, and that in the twenty-nine months of the national debt has been decreased $143,139,561. In the face of these figures the attempt to prove that the national Administration is as corrupt as the City administration of New-York is simply ludicrous, and shows to what straits Tammany is reduced.

Worcester (Mass.) Spy.

It is curious to observe how steadily the champions of the Ring in New-York refuse to meet the charges so unanswerably made by the TIMES and supported by all the Republican and some of the Democratic papers of the City. The accounts of the figures published by the TIMES is admitted. The only explanations suggested by these papers are evaded by answering that the attacks of the TIMES is prompted by an old grudge, and that Tammany leaders are now trying a new dodge to ride over the present excitement without giving them to the public. This appears in a letter addressed by Mayor HALL and Mr. CONNOLLY, yesterday, to President DODGE, of the Chamber of Commerce, asking for the appointment of a committee to make an examination of the public accounts and the condition of the public credit.

"We have a strong idea that the Tammany leaders will not make anything by this device, although, remembering how easily they got a certificate of good character last Fall, at the hands of a committee headed by MARSHALL O. ROBERTS, it is perhaps not strange that they have tried it. What the New-York public demands is to be allowed to read the Controller's accounts itself, and certification of "known and upright citizens" that everything is all right will no longer satisfy that demand.

Pottsville (Penn.) Miners' Journal.

Now let New-York resolve to punish the Tammany thieves, and place them where they belong, in Sing Sing and Auburn.

MONDAY, Aug. 7—A. M.

The Sunday edition of the New-York World contains what purports to be an official account of the City and County Debt of New-York, brought forward from the previous account of the Controller of April 20. The increase in the three months would seem, by this formal showing, to be $10,385,410, as follows:

	April 20, 1871.	July 31, 1871.
City Debt	$70,666,624	$75,514,100
County Debt	2,485,150	2,742,150
Total	$73,151,774	$78,256,250
Sinking Fund	14,247,628	12,583,621
Net obligations	$58,904,146	$64,776,557
Increase in three months		$10,385,410

Of the above increase $7,300,000 is in Consolidated Debt, under the Act of April, 1871, authorizing the Consolidation of the Debt of the City and County. Bonds to this amount have been issued within the three months, without the compelling of a corresponding sum of existing obligations. This must certainly be regarded as a most unfortunate beginning of the Consolidation policy. There would seem to be no mistake in the matter as the Controller confesses as follows:

"It will be noticed that there is an increase of the permanent debt of the county by the issue of consols to the amount of $8,200,000, without a reduction of the revenue bonds of 1871, and New-York County bonds for repayment of taxes on account of the redemption of which the consols were issued. The bonds for repayment of taxes not maturing until Nov. 1, and the revenue bonds not until Dec. 1, the money borrowed has been used for the current expenses of the Government, in anticipation of the collection of taxes. * * An issue of $4,100,000 is also shown of the consols of the City, which is to be applied toward the redemption of the bonds of the City and for the payments authorized by the Consolidated Debt act."

The two sums thus referred to make up the $7,800,000 Consolidated Stocks first issued under the Act of April, 1871, without paying off the Debt purporting to be Consolidated.

The following is the City and County Debt under the present Administration of Mayor HALL and Controller CONNOLLY since Jan. 1, 1869, when Governor (then Mayor) HOFFMAN retired from office:

	Gross Debt.	Sinking Fund.	Net Debt.
Jan. 1, 1869	$60,623,230	$10,121,763	$50,497,047
Jan. 1, 1871	97,555,449	17,797,220	79,758,229
May 1, 1871	109,263,514	18,363,639	90,541,185
Aug. 1, 1871	113,057,358	18,889,681	94,776,557

In contrast with the fearful progress of increase in the City and County Debt of New-York, a reference to the progress of rapid reduction in the Debt of the United States under the Administration of President GRANT and Secretary BOUTWELL may not be inappropriate:

	Debt of United States.	Debt of City of New-York.
March, 1869	$2,676,452,260
January, 1870		$24,497,047
January, 1871	2,322,027,703	79,758,229
May, 1871	2,246,731,015	90,541,185
August, 1871	2,208,876,057	94,776,557

The general trade of the past week has again been active for midsummer, in the business of Imported Merchandise and Produce Exports. The amount of Foreign Goods upon which Customs Duties were paid during the week was nearly ten millions of dollars, in preparation for the Fall trade. The Customs paid were $3,877,000, which, at the present tariff of 40 ₱ cent., (average,) ad valorem, would imply that $9,700,000 had been placed upon the market. The Exports of Domestic Produce are on a liberal scale, and would have been larger for the week but for the advance in freights and scarcity of tonnage. There is no export movement in American Gold Coin, and the clearances of Gold and Silver of all descriptions amount to only $565,000, comparing with one of the heavy War shipments of last Summer, $2,834,000 in amount for the first week in August.

The weekly averages of the Associated Banks, Local and National, reporting through the Clearing-house for the week ending Saturday last, Aug. 5, compare as follows with the previous week, and also with the corresponding week last year. To which we add the Gold and Currency balances in the New-York Office of the United States Treasury, at these dates respectively:

	Aug. 5, '71.	Aug. 5, '71.	July 29, '71.
National Capital	$77,000,000	$72,187,000	$71,962,000

In Sub-Treasury	22,597,248	27,577,223	27,577,223

The Bank return published this morning exhibits the relative strength of the movement in respect to the lawful money held as against the circulation and deposits, to which we add the position of the movement of the week before, and also of the movement of the corresponding week last year:

	July 29, '71.	Aug. 5, '71.	Aug. 6, '70.
Deposits	$207,057,209	$220,719,200	$220,422,322

Decrease		Less ₱ ct	Less ₱ ct
Reserve in Treasury	27,577,223	22,597,248	27,577,223

The Bank return of the week shows a large loss of Gold Notes, transferred to the Treasury through the Inspectors in the payment of Customs Duties. The Gold average is down $3,619,925. The Customs of the week are $3,877,745. The Treasury sold $1,000,000 Gold on Thursday, not delivered until Friday, and which would count but one day on the Bank average. The general line of Bank Deposits is down $4,635,577. The Greenbacks are nearly the same as last Monday—$70,967 less. The Loans are up $717,976. The Treasury paid out since Aug. 1 for Gold Interest on the Public Debt $705,-101. Money closed 3 to 5 ₱ cent. on call loan and 4½ to 6 ₱ cent. on time engagements. From first-class Stock firms the lowest figures are accepted by leaders. Exchange closes 109¾@109¾ on London, and the sales of Gold at 112½ ₱ cent.

The Import entries at New-York, embracing Foreign Dry Goods and General Merchandise, for the past week, were $6,441,584, as against $5,126,495 for the corresponding week last year. The Exports of Domestic Produce, other than Gold and Silver, were $4,377,661, against $3,578,271 same week in 1870. The Exports of Gold and Silver, $565,675, against $3,834,371 same week in 1870. The Customs in Gold paid into the New-York Office of the United States Treasury for the week were $3,877,745. The receipts of Cotton, coastwise and by rail, 7,300 bales.

The gold values of the Import entries of Foreign Merchandise at New-York, exclusive of Foreign Specie, for the Calendar year 1871, are as follows, the figures being official to July 1, and since semi-official from the Custom-house:

January	$24,224,870	July 1	$4,468,950

The Stock Exchange is generally firm. The Public Funds are held for very full rates, and the descriptions wanted for Europe are scarce. The Bankers find it more difficult to make up orders for hundreds of thousands than a few months since for mill lions, in Coupon 5-20s and 10-40s. The Southern State Bonds and the Pacific Railway Bonds are better than at the close of the previous week. The Railway Share speculation is also higher and the prices of the day, as a rule, sustained the advance of Friday, closing as follows after the late Board, the Stock of the Pacific Mail and of the Western Union Telegraph participating in the general firmness:

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

JAY COOKE & Co. are NOW selling, and recommend as a profitable and safe investment for all classes, the First Mortgage 7.30 Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have thirty years to run, bear Seven and Three-tenths per Cent. gold interest, (more than 6 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the entire line and its appurtenances, and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on 20,000 Acres of Land to every mile of track, or 800 acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from United States tax; principal and interest are payable in Gold. Denominations: Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

Northern Pacific 7.30s are at all times receivable, at THE PAR CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's lands, at their lowest cash prices.

The proceeds of all sales of lands are required to be devoted to the repurchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres in the most fertile portion of the North-west, and the demand for the Company's lands for settlement greatly exceeds the ability of the Government to complete the surveys. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due.

Holders of United States Five-twenties, who wish to convert them into a first-class railroad security, can do so at a present profit of about 15 per cent., while increasing their income interest nearly one-fourth, by exchanging them for Northern Pacific 7.30s.

All marketable stocks and bonds will be received in exchange at their highest current price. Full information, maps, pamphlets, &c., will be furnished on application to any agent for the loan, or to JAY COOKE & Co., New-York, Philadelphia or Washington.

HARVEY FISK, A. S. HATCH.

OFFICE OF FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES,
No. 5 NASSAU-ST., NEW-YORK, July 24, 1871.

To persons DESIRING TO INVEST MONEY or to FUND THEIR FIVE-TWENTIES, we offer and recommend, with the fullest confidence, the FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS OF THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, as an extremely safe and reliable investment.

The great value of the property now existing, in completed road in successful operation, renders the security ample, and independent of future contingencies.

The traffic awaiting the extension of the Road to the Ohio River as a great Eastand West Trunk Line, now in progress and rapidly approaching completion, will be immense and profitable.

The experienced, prudent and honorable management for which the Company is distinguished, and the well-known character of its officers and directors, are a sufficient guarantee of good faith, and insure for their securities a high credit and standing in the market, which must render them always popular and salable.

The exchange of Five-twenties for these Bonds may now be made with a profit of about twenty per cent., and a continuance of six per cent. gold, interest.

Price, 92 and accrued interest from May 1. The Bonds are in denominations of $1,000, $500 $100.

FISK & HATCH.

THE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE NEW-ORLEANS, MOBILE AND TEXAS RAILROAD COMPANY bear 8 per cent. currency, or 7 ₱ cent. gold interest; have forty five years to run; are in the denomination of $1,000, or £200 each; are limited in amount to $12,500 per mile, and are based upon the Louisiana Division, of the great trunk line, from Mobile through New-Orleans to Houston, of which line two-thirds is already built. These Bonds are offered for the present at 90, and accrued interest from July 1.

The advantages of these bonds for

SAFE AND PROFITABLE INVESTMENT are manifest upon examination. No railroad bond is better secured, while holders of Government will find a decided profit in selling at the present high prices, and reinvesting in these bonds, which cost less, but pay much larger interest.

The fullest information given on application to W. B. SHATTUCK, Banker and Financial Agent, N. O. M. & T. R. R. Co., No. 52 Nassau-street, New-York.

THE FIRST MORTGAGE SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS of the WEST WISCONSIN RAILWAY COMPANY offer a rare chance for safe and profitable investment. They are a first and only lien upon the Road, which is now nearly completed, the rolling stock, telegraph, land grant, and all the property of the Company. The bonds are released from taxation, and are worth more than the whole amount of the mortgage. The Road will form the great air-line route from Chicago and Milwaukee to St. Paul and the North-west. Bonds for sale at 90 and interest in currency, by WHITE, MORRIS & CO., No. 15 Wall-st., and GWYNNE, JOHNSON & DAY, No. 16 Wall-st., where pamphlets and further information can be obtained.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The proposed meeting in Dublin yesterday to demand amnesty for the Fenian offenders was prohibited by the authorities, but the projectors insisted, and a riot ensued which lasted for half an hour. The Police finally succeeded in dispersing the crowd. Mr. SAXTON, M. P., and Mr. SULLIVAN, of the Nation, the leading spirits in the projected meeting, were badly wounded, and over a hundred other injured persons were taken to the hospitals. The leaders will be prosecuted. Minister BOURBOUK is soon to visit Switzerland. The yacht Alice won the Prince of Wales Cup at Cowes on Saturday. The Duke of ARGYLL is to preside at the Scots Centennial in Glasgow. Tom HUGHES, M. P., has been taken suddenly ill. The American ship Southampton was burned at Liverpool on Saturday, with a cargo of coal. The House of Commons has voted to postpone till next session all questions of reform in the statute laws of the Kingdom. Prince HUMBERT, of Italy, is to visit England.

Gen. THIOT makes an official acknowledgment of gratitude for England's generosity during the war, commending the battles in which "the valor and humanity of the English were equally conspicuous." M. COUDRE, late Prefect of Marseilles, has committed suicide. The question of prolonging the powers of the French President THIERS is likely to go by default. The siege of Paris is to be raised on the 15th inst. Bills are to be introduced in the French Assembly by the Government against the International Society. The Income Tax bill, and the proposition to indemnify citizens for losses during the German invasion, were debated on Saturday, but no action was reached. President THIERS spoke against the latter measure, and was frequently interrupted. He favors rather, but not full indemnification. Affairs in Algeria are represented to be critical, some of the commanders refusing to obey orders, and the General commanding threatening to resign.

Four accomplices in the Prim assassination, among them an aid-de-camp of the Duke of Montpensier, are about to be tried in Madrid, and the Duke summoned as a witness.

GENERAL.

The people of Bennington, Vt., town and county, are making great arrangements for the anniversary of the battle of Bennington, Aug. 16. An effort is afoot to secure representatives from every town in the State. The Twenty-fourth New-York Regiment and several military and civic organizations will join in the parade.

The yacht Josephine, R. M. C. DURFEE, of Fall River, Mass., lost her masts, bowsprit and head-gear in a collision with the schooner Lizzie Fiarman, off Boston's Head, on Saturday. The schooner's damage was slight.

The Italians in San Francisco yesterday held their festivities in honor of the occupation of Rome by Victor EMMANUEL, which passed without interruption. The Police had made extra preparations to preserve order, but they were not required to put them in force.

The enlistment at Montreal for Cuba, constitutes the excitement of the hour, especially since the sudden check administered. Two Quebec filibusters "pounded" on the filibusters of Montreal, and on the applications of the Spanish Consul, Judge DOUCET issued warrants for the apprehension of Major Wm. ROBINSON and James L. STARKEY, both members of the "Prince of Wales Rifles." STARKEY was held for further examination, but Major ROBINSON was admitted to bail.

The trial of four men before the United States Commissioner at Memphis, Tenn., for a Ku-Klux murder was concluded on Saturday, the prisoners being discharged.

The latest returns of the North Carolina Convention indicate Republican gains in most of the counties. The Constitutional Convention is thought to be defeated by several thousand majority.

A negro entered the residence, at Burlington, Iowa, of a German named LEISER, on Friday morning, with the purpose of stealing, but seeing a young girl lying on her bed, attempted a darker crime. The father, aroused by her screams, hastened to the room, but on entering was shot through the heart by the negro, who escaped.

The Ku-Klux Investigating Committee concluded the examination of witnesses from the South, Saturday, and took a recess until the 25th of September. Lieut. Gen. B. FORREST testified to the existence of Ku-Klux in Alabama, and said their object was to intimidate colored voters and drive out white Republicans.

At the late election in Mexico DIAZ received 1,869 votes, JUAREZ 1,857, and LERDO 1,298. The choice devolves on Congress, in which there is likely to be a warm contest.

A Government Requiring Explanation.

At last, we have a sample of the sort of defense by which our estimable Mayor and our immaculate Controller hope to place their administration of the City finances above suspicion. The figures elsewhere given show far too little to satisfy the public demand for a detailed statement of City expenditures, and prove a great deal too much to serve as a vindication of the men who are now on trial before the public on certain very specific and serious charges. The Herald published yesterday a report of an interview with Mayor HALL, in the course of which the Mayor took occasion to make some explanations, by way of introduction to the financial statement, "at the close of business July 31, 1871." These explanations are almost as remarkable as the statement itself. The Mayor begins with a flimsy attempt to gloss over the truth, followed up by a direct perversion of it. The first is contained in the following sentences:

"The last report of the Controller was of 1869. Up to April, 1870, the law was that he should furnish an annual report."

Had the Mayor desired to state the exact truth he would have said that the last report of the Controller was issued in 1869, and covered the expenditures of the year 1868. That he desired people to believe what was false is obvious from his further assertion that,

"While the next fiscal year was running, and about one quarter gone, the charter was passed and it repealed the old law about reports. In the old order of things the next annual report would have come up to January, 1871, and have been printed about February last."

The next fiscal year was 1869, and instead of coming down to January, 1871, the next annual report would of course have come down to January, 1870. The Mayor wants the public to believe that it was only with reference to the first three months of 1870 that the Controller omitted to comply with the statutory enactment requiring published reports of his accounts, while he attempts to conceal the fact that no accounts were published between January, 1869, and June, 1871, the omission with reference to the year 1869 being in direct contempt of the law. After the new charter came into operation, April 1, 1870, the Mayor admits that he alone was responsible for the publication of the Controller's report. Section 21 of the charter is explicit on the point, or as the Mayor, with his accustomed felicity of expression remarks, "it was not his (the Controller's) fault that one did not accept appear; it was mine for not asking."

After having, in this highly ingenious manner, done justice to his colleagues, the Mayor promises that he will shortly justify himself. He makes a vague reference to certain "statistical tables," which became of being "huge," and calculated to fill the major portion of "a dozen bound volumes," are rather in arrears. It has been the misfortune of the Times, it seems, to delay the production of this portentous array of figures, though it is some consolation to know that the "tables" for '68 and '69 are, in consequence of our statements, to be reprinted, (the latter, be it noted, have never been printed at all,) and that, consequently, we shall have become the means of introducing to the world some thirty "pound volumes" instead of a dozen. As a sort of commentary on this appalling mass of accounts, which are definitely promised this week, we are assured that the Mayor will write a message to the Board of Supervisors, accompanying the County figures, and one to the Common Council along with the City figures. The nature of these messages cannot be better indicated, than in the choice language of their author:

"In these messages, without being journalistic or personal, I will endeavor to dignifiedly satisfy the public mind and to the unprecedented exploits much that the partisan press has been belooping."

After so lucid and satisfactory an introduction, the public mind becomes fully prepared to appreciate the first of the monthly statements of City expenditure which are now promised in unbroken order. This production is confidently put forward in order to allay the public apprehensions on the score of our local expenditures. How well it is calculated to do so may be gathered from the following considerations. It shows that during the last three months the City debt has been increased by the amount of $10,228,969 36, or as we have explained below more in detail, at the rate of $5,427,766 45 per month. It shows that $67,740 88 was expended in July last for cleaning streets, which, nevertheless, remained shamefully filthy. It shows that in the various departments of the City Government there was paid for salaries in July the sum of $100,575 83, or, at the rate of $1,920,904 56 per annum, and it does not show what proportion of this sum was drawn by men who gave no services in return. Under the head of county payments, it shows that there was expended on account of armories and drill-rooms the sum of $3,859 90, and the public is left to guess how many chairs were mended and pipes soldered for the largest proportion of this modest sum. We find that in the Legislative, Executive, and Judiciary Departments of the county there was expended for salaries in July $37,802 50, or at the rate of $1,170,878 75 per annum. The Controller does not enlighten the taxpayers as to how much of this sum is devoted to the maintenance of Court messengers, whose only work is drawing their salaries; of stenographers, who would be puzzled to tell the meaning of the word under which they are described; or of numerous watchmen and janitors, who, in that capacity, have an existence which is quietly incidental. Finally, we were to publish proofs showing that one-fifth of every dollar honestly received by $5,000 a year for work which he makes no pretense of performing, what answer would it be to point us to the Controller's monthly statement, recapitulating under certain heads of expenditure certain totals whose correctness no tax-payers can verify and whose details are studiously kept out of sight? If the "statistical tables," about which the Mayor talks so grandiloquently, are of this kind, he may as well spare the City the cost of printing them. They will only make his own condemnation more universal and crushing, and will not in the slightest degree satisfy the public demand to know the whole truth. We have challenged the Mayor to show that our transcripts from the Controller's books were not correctly made. He has, as we said he would, utterly failed to impugn the accuracy of any of our figures. We have demanded from him, on behalf of the public, certain specific information which he seems determined to withhold. We shall probably come to his relief some of these days, on subjects about which the public is exceedingly desirous to have more information.

How Long Will This Last?

We are enabled, by the statement of the condition of the public debt made by the Mayor, to ascertain how much he is willing to confess that that debt has increased within the last three months. We already had data from which to calculate with accuracy its rate of increase at various periods previous to the last three months. We invite the attention of every tax-payer, and specially of every Democratic tax-payer, to the facts revealed by these calculations. They are throughout based on official figures, and if they err at all, it is in understating the increase of the debt.

We begin with a table compiled from the latest installment of the Mayor's confessions, showing the increase in our local indebtedness for the last three months:

DEBT OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK.	April 30, '71.	July 31, '71.
Funded debt of the City	$49,710,864 51	$54,381,709 51
Funded debt of the County	21,591,250 00	20,791,250 00
Total	$71,302,114 51	$79,122,053 51
Sinking Fund	15,015,741 42	15,656,661 36
Total	$56,036,372 09	$60,562,292 95
So-called temporary debt,
City	10,914,000 00	12,334,000 00
Revenue Bonds, City	9,776,000 00	11,707,000 00
Revenue Bonds, County	10,988,000 00	10,981,000 00
Advances on City account		5,813,736 67
Due on County account		985,000 00
Total	$30,678,073 73	$39,820,736 67

Turning now to the condition of the debt on the 31st of December 1870, we find it to have been, according to official statements, $73,686,226 75; on the 31st of December, 1868, it was, according to the same statements, $34,407,047 91.

In the two years from the 31st of December, 1868, to the 31st of December, 1870, the total increase was $39,279,178 84. This was at the rate of $1,636,632 45 per month. This was certainly running the City in debt at a very rapid rate—a rate more than five times as rapid as that at which the debt increased during the five years of war from Dec. 31, 1860, to Dec. 31, 1865. Had the people fully realized then what was going on, they would have been justly indignant and reasonably alarmed. Worse things, however, were in store. From the 31st of December, 1870, to April 30, 1871, a period of four months immediately succeeding the period of the last calculation, the debt was increased by $10,985,445 58. This was at the rate of $2,746,361 37 a month, or in a proportion nine times greater than during war times. The latest statement is, however, more ruinous to the reputation of the City Government than any official exhibits that have preceded it. It shows that from the date of the Mayor's message, April 30, to July 31, the City and County debt has been swelled by $16,289,200 30. This is at the perfectly incredible rate of $5,427,733 43 per month. It is nearly twice as fast as the debt was increasing for the first four months of 1871; it is three and one-third times as fast as it increased during 1869 and 1870; and it is more than eighteen times as fast as it increased during the years of the war.

Questions for the Controller.

"The revenue bonds are payable, as aforesaid, from the taxes of the year 1871, and in anticipation of their payment, excepting $6,813,000, (special,) which are to be redeemed from the proceeds of the consolidated debt loan, as provided by chapter 323, laws of 1871."

The sentence is unintelligible as it stands, but it probably means that $6,813,000 of the revenue bonds, which the Controller had just told us was a "temporary debt," to be paid out of this year's taxes, are in reality to be added to the permanent or consolidated debt of the City.

"An issue of $4,100,000 is also shown of the bonds of the City, which is to be applied toward the redemption of the bonds of the City, and for the payments authorized by the Consolidated Debt act."

Why does not the Controller tell the public which "bonds of the City" are to be redeemed by this four million dollars? The only assignable reason is, that if he did, they would turn out to be these very revenue bonds which he had previously said were to be paid from this year's taxes. The truth is, and "Slippery DICK" knows it full well, that all the revenue bonds of this year (and he can issue them without limit) are to be redeemed, not by taxes of the current year, but by bonds issued under the Consolidated Debt act, and thus added to the permanent debt of the City. The money raised by taxation is to go, as it has gone years before, to support the "Ring" and its retainers; to pay the bogus bills of INGERSOLL, GARVEY & Co.; to augment the political fund of Tammany Hall, and to support the army of idle vagabonds who hold sinecures. The "Two per Cent" Tax Levy, about which the public has heard so much, allows the City authorities to raise twenty-three millions by taxation during the present year. According to CONNOLLY'S statement he had already issued, during the first half of the year, revenue bonds to within about two hundred dollars of the extreme legislative limit. We stated at the time that the Two per Cent. Tax Levy was before the Legislature that it was a fraud, and that the "Ring" had no intention of confining their expenditures to twenty-three millions dollars. The Consolidated Debt act was passed for the very purpose of enabling them to exceed this limit by converting as many of the revenue bonds as they desired into the bonds of the consolidated debt.

The Controller gives us, for the first time, a slight glimpse at the new Court-house account. His statement shows that $905,000 has been paid out on account of that building within the last fifteen months. What it was paid for he does not tell us, and that is just what the public want to know. We defy the Controller to show where $650,000 has been actually expended on that building during that time. One of his items is $600,000, which he says was expended under authority of chapter 289, laws of 1870. This is the appropriation about which we have often made inquiries, but have never got any answer. The law referred to by the Controller authorized him to pay this money only on vouchers approved by the Commissioners to be appointed by the Mayor. The Commissioners were not appointed till last December. Did the Controller pay out the money before that time? If he did, he violated the law. If he did not, then the whole amount of $905,000 has been expended on the new Court-house within the last eight months. What was it spent for? Where are the vouchers? The same law that appropriated the $600,000 (chapter 389, laws of 1870,) requires the vouchers to be "filed in the Controller's office." Will CONNOLLY produce them?

Course in the West.

There is in England a Society for the Encouragement of Flying, whose members look fondly forward to the time when everybody shall be as it were his own balloon, and man shall ride the clouds as easily as he now careers upon the waves. Every year this sanguine association publishes reports detailing the progress of their favorite science and making the most captivating predictions of its future development. These, however, appear to have but a remote prospect of fulfillment. Every scheme of aerial navigation, however ingenious and promising, has hitherto come to naught, and human skill seems inadequate to imitate that exquisite machinery which bears the swallow in his trackless flight, and which the Duke of ARGYLL describes with so much accuracy and ardor in the Reign of Law. The secret of DEDALUS has perished with him. Even that wonderful San Francisco Aviator, which many supposed had solved the problem, disappoints, at the crisis the hope of its projectors. A like ignominious end befel that pretentious aircar which so long excited the curiosity of our citizens in the neighborhood of Houston and Mercer streets, where it was housed. The difficulties in the way of a practicable flying machine are indeed so enormous as to be almost insurmountable—at least with our present knowledge—and even the dream of a future conquest of the air is cherished only by the boldest speculator.

Of these, one of the most earnest, if not the most discreet, resides in Detroit. He fancied that he had mastered the situation with a pair of immense wings constructed of oiled silk and fastened behind his shoulders. They were to be worked by a downward movement of his arms, and so equipped he was ready to fly to the uttermost parts of the earth. Unhappily his zeal was greater than his knowledge, and the first public exhibition he gave of his new invention resulted in a lamentable fiasco. He had not even the satisfaction, like his prototype, ICARUS, of winning immortality by failure and giving his name to a sea. It would have been something to singe one's wings on the very edge of the sun, and have an ocean for mausoleum and monument. But the poor Detroit gentleman, with the first flap of his elaborate pinions, simply tumbled himself on his head in the dust he thought to spurn forever. Fortunately, whether from some secret distrust of his own success or a desire to add to the difficulty and éclat of his performance, he had begun his flight from the modest altitude of about six feet. He escaped with no severer punishment than a serious headache and a sufficient amount of ridicule from the spectators.

If this adventurous person is not already a corresponding member of the English society mentioned he ought to be made so at once. Failures are often more instructive than successes, and this individual has rendered a real service to the cause of aerial navigation by demonstrating anew the folly of attempting to fly with artificial wings. The most superficial study of the bird structure will show at once the impossibility of adapting to the human subject its means of locomotion. Even the bird, with all its enormous disproportion of muscular power to bulk, finds it no easy task to overcome the laws of gravity, and its first rising in the air is always, according to competent observers, an effort of prodigious violence. If man is ever to explore the "sad blue fields and folds of air" it must be by some propelling agency vastly more powerful and buoyant than himself.

New Edition of Olney's Geography.

The good people of Olney, Ill., six thousand or so in number, are under considerable exercise of mind anent the sudden shifting of all the land titles of the place, from their own names, into that of an adventurous lawyer, who now legally owns the entire realty of the town. A clerical error in the original deed of the land on which the city stands, was discovered by this sharp limb of the law, and the result, as Micawber would say, is misery. And all this, because the original patentee acted on a supposition in parcelling out the land, and his customers did the same in laying out the town. The land described in the patent is the corresponding section in township four south, instead of four north.

The discoverer of this rather serious error went to work with the clue he had obtained, and finally found his labor rewarded by an order from the General Land Officer notifying the local register that this particular spot was vacant on the record, and subject to entry under the Homestead and Pre-emption laws. The register was ordered, however, not to allow any private entry of the land until it was regularly restored to the market after public notice for thirty days. This last proviso was intended for the protection of the present occupants who might embrace the opportunity to repurchase their slippery sites at a nominal price. The lawyer, however, was not to be foiled so easily; for a private Act of Congress, passed in 1860, issued scrip to one PORTERFIELD for the value of some 6,000 acres of land, which scrip was made receivable for any land surveyed, whether the land had been made subject to entry or not. Getting possession of this scrip, our legal friend tendered it for the Olney tract, and the land officer was compelled to receive it. Thus their happy homes were wrenched away from these honest citizens, as though by an earthquake or a land-slide.

It is only a few weeks since our country exchanges informed us that another Western adventurer had unearthed a long-forgotten lien upon certain property belonging to the Trinity Church estate, and that parties now in possession had compromised the claim by the payment of a million of dollars or more. This romance, albeit it appeared in a full-dress suit of details, lacked that one essential, truth, and was soon exploded when brought to New-York for verification. None of the parties concerned appeared to "scare worth a cent," and then the matter dropped.

Another of these real estate canards not long ago, reported a defect in the title of some of the Rock Island Railroad Companies' lands in Iowa. The only foundation for the rumor was in an erroneous interpretation of a decision made by the Interior Superintendent respecting a few homestead entries in the localities mentioned. Its effect, however, for a time was to render the railroad Companies, colonists and customers very uneasy as to the value of their titles. The breeze has now blown over, and the unpleasantness which it occasioned has passed away.

These instances, more especially the one first mentioned, suggest the necessity of absolute accuracy in the descriptive portion of conveyances, and also indicate the existence of a class of prowlers, (who might aptly be termed land-pirates,) who make it their business to delve among musty records in search of errors in titles, whose discovery will give them a hold upon unfortunate occupants. The system of searching and conveyancing has been reduced almost to an exact science in the older States; but at the West the registry and entry of wild lands has, in many places, been so loosely conducted that such an experience as that of the citizens of Olney is scarcely likely to stand alone. But the discoverer of new worlds of this sort must not calculate upon receiving the honors of a COLUMBUS at the hands of those whose homes and hopes he disturbs.

MINOR TOPICS.

If ever an armed revolution takes place in Great Britain, it seems likely that it will commence in a public park. It is but a fortnight since English journals were recalling the anniversary of the great Hyde Park riots, when Mr. BEALES found himself the leader of a mixed army of artisans and roughs who had met to express their dissatisfaction with the Government then in power. Only the other day we had intelligence of another demand being lately to be made for a public demonstration of a political kind in Hyde Park. And now from Dublin we have the news that in defiance of the local authorities, a member of Parliament and two editors led an enthusiastic band of the friends of universal amnesty for political offenses into the Phœnix Park, and there provoked a collision with the Police, which resulted in many broken heads, but no fatal consequences. It is a pity that His Royal Highness the Prince of WALES, at present a guest in Dublin Castle, should not have witnessed this mêlée. It would have gratified his taste for exhibitions of a muscular kind, and, at the time, furnished him with some materials for reflection.

A meeting of the citizens of the Twelfth and Nineteenth Wards, is called for to-night at the new hall of the East Side Association Eighty-sixth-street, corner Third-avenue. It is to take action in regard to the great frauds perpetrated on the people of this City, and the President of the Association by whom the meeting is called, promises that some new and important facts in regard to rapid transit and the Viaduct Railway shall also be placed before the meeting. We trust the attendance will be large, and that the question will be calmly and thoroughly discussed, with a view to initiating practical measures to put a stop to the frauds referred to. That is the business, and, just now, the very urgent business, of just such bodies as this "Citizens' Association."

The Tribune has taken special pains to represent the reorganization of the Republican party in this city as a "Custom-house" movement, and all who took part in it as Custom-house employes. The truth is, that those who were most anxious for a reorganization were that class of Republicans who neither held nor wish to hold office, but who had become tired of seeing the Republican party of the city controlled by professional politicians and office-holders, and especially by men who were betraying it into the hands of the Democracy. A glance at the names on the roll of the new General Committee will show how groundless is the Tribune's charge that the reorganization was inspired from the Customs. For every member of the new Committee who holds any Federal office, there are at least four members of the Committee over which Mr. GREELEY presides who hold office under Tammany Hall.

Our Washington dispatches give some light upon the origin of the expedition to Corea, which has ended in hostilities. It was authorized by the State Department as long ago as April, 1870. Its object was simply to obtain a treaty with the Corean Government for the protection of American citizens shipwrecked on their coasts. The conduct of the negotiations was entrusted to Mr. LOW, our Minister to China, accompanied by Mr. SEWARD, our Consul-General at Shanghai, and he was instructed to confer with Admiral ROGERS at every stage, and to be prudent in his procedure. If he succeeded in the treaty regarding seamen, he was to use his judgment as to proposing a treaty opening Corean ports to commerce. It seems that the Commodore had been reported as having maltreated the shipwrecked crew of the American vessel General Sherman, but had previously treated kindly a crew, similarly situated, of an American vessel, the Surprise. The expedition was to take with it vessels enough to make "a show of force" and to maintain the dignity of the country. It is not yet shown what occasioned the unfortunate result of this peacefully-directed effort.

The constitutional objection to competitive examinations as an instrument of civil service reform is ably discussed in the current number of the Nation. The writer brushes aside as absurd the idea on which, almost exclusively, the objection rests, that a "competitive examination" means "a separate examination of all the Applicants for each particular office, and the appointment to either of the successful competitors." He then proceeds to show that competitive examinations to ascertain who are incapable of performing the duties of certain grades and grades of offices, and the requirement that appointments shall be made from the persons thus indicated, are entirely within the constitutional powers of Congress. This is unquestionably the ground taken by the Times, and we shall be much surprised if it do not prove to be the ground on which the Commissioners will be ultimately allowed to proceed.

"We did steal the money, and we need it to corrupt the State Legislature to get us the chance to steal more." This is the confession, in substance, of the Albany Argus, whose editors and proprietors are well known in the lobbies of the Legislature. The Argus is the State paper, and receives thousands of the tax-payers' money, and it may be accepted as authority on the disposition made of the stealings by Tammany. The confession is copied into the New-York World, and the language embodying it is ratified. It is exactly in harmony with the talk of those men among themselves which might have been heard any day last Winter in the halls of the Legislature. We do not remember to have before seen it introduced into the columns of Democratic newspapers. We are glad it has found its way there. We hope decent Democrats will read it and realize what it means.

A very interesting experiment has been undertaken on the line of the Kansas Pacific Railroad. Mr. E. S. ELLIOTT, the accomplished and energetic industrial agent of that road, conceived the idea that he could add largely to the attractiveness and real value of the land belonging to it, if he could show that trees valuable for shade and timber could be grown on the dry plains through which the road largely runs, without artificial irrigation, and with no more care than farmers can well afford to give them. He selected three little farms of ten acres each, one of which was on the very western edge of Kansas and 3,500 feet above the sea, and went to work with only two laborers. He has succeeded in proving, so far, that black walnut, white ash, elm, catalpa, ailantus, box-elder, and osage orange will grow thriftily planted in soil unmanured and turned up only six to eight inches by the plow. Ailantus also grows rapidly from the seed. Other varieties have failed, but many of them can, of course, easily be introduced by first providing windbreaks of the rougher trees. Mr. ELLIOTT'S achievement is certainly an important one. It settles the possibility of cultivating a vast portion of the country, to the settlement of which hereafter, its treeless condition has been an insuperable obstacle.

The Controller's Statement.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In common with many other tax-payers, I was consoling myself with the reflection that your exposure of the gross frauds on the part of the City officials would at least put a stop to them, and that the worst that could happen to us poor tax-payers would be to be saddled with the immense load of these prior stealings. But the statement of the debt of the City and county at the close of business July 31, 1871, just furnished by the Controller, dispels this happy illusion, and shows conclusively that down to the present day the same system of wholesale robbery is being carried on, and that the credit of the City is only sustained by a system of kiting which must soon bring its tools and confederates down to the limbo of fancy stocks.

The taxes of the City and County of New-York are, of course, intended to pay the expenses for the entire year, and are only sufficient for that purpose. Now, it appears from the Controller's statement just published, that down to the 30th of April, 1871, only four months there had already been issued, in anticipation of the taxes for the present year,

City revenue bonds	$2,776,000
County revenue bonds	10,988,000
Total	$13,764,000

Between the 30th of April, 1870, and July 31, 1871, there had been issued the further amount of

City revenue bonds	$1,558,000
County revenue bonds	10,000
Total	$1,568,000

In addition to this, between the 30th of April, 1871, and the 31st of July, 1871, the Controller has issued of the consolidated stock of 1867,

City bonds	$4,100,000
County bonds	2,200,000
Total	$7,300,000

making a total of cash receipts from these sources alone, between July 1, 1871, and July 31, as follows:

From revenue bonds	$23,732,000
From consolidated stock	7,300,000
Total	$31,032,000

During all this time there has been redeemed but $79,158 of the City debt, which, with the interest of the entire debt, has been paid out of the $236,436 received by the sinking fund from other sources.

A glance at one item in the City account will throw an immense deal of light upon the manner in which the City finances are conducted, and will also show where a great deal of the thirty millions of dollars has gone.

Among the items of the City account are seven per cent. revenue bonds of 1871, payable in 1872, $6,982,000, and a similar item in the county account. The plain English of this is, a portion of the money borrowed in anticipation of the revenues of 1871 is to be paid out of the taxes of 1872.

Since the present administration of TWEED, SWEENY, CONNOLLY and HALL came into power, some three or four years ago, the heavy demands of the proprietors of the Transcript, the American Club, and the expenses of fitting up and improving their property, or armories and Court-rooms, &c., including palaces for themselves, and outfits for their families, a large portion of the bills for which have appeared in your columns under various disguises, have absorbed so much of the current receipts from taxes that a large deficiency has occurred which has been bridged over from year to year by the issue of revenue bonds payable the following year. This deficiency had finally increased to such an amount that it could no longer be carried along in that way, as the entire receipts of taxes for one year were not sufficient to pay the revenue bonds accruing from the previous year. It became necessary, therefore, for the Ring to anticipate the taxes for two years, and they procured the passage of a law fixing the taxes for two years in advance, but the vast amount of accumulated debt bonds issued during the past year made it difficult, if not impossible, to negotiate their revenue bonds, issued in anticipation of the taxes for two years, and the scheme was then inaugurated of a consolidated stock, payable in 1901, into which all outstanding revenue bonds might be funded, and if the Ring could manage to negotiate them in season to meet their maturing revenue bonds, the entire $60,000,000 which will be coming due on the 1st from the taxes will probably be appropriated by the Ring in the same manner as the last two years, taxes which had so unaccountably disappeared until unearthed by your investigations.

Of the $10,000,000 of county revenue bonds issued, payable Dec. 31, 1871, with seven per cent. interest, we are informed in a note to the report that "$2,212,000 were issued in payment of claims and debts against the County of New-York, audited under special laws, from the spring of 1870 to the summer of 1871. They include these all. These accounts have not accrued since the early Autumn of 1870, when published, and cannot now be increased." It was from the proceeds of these $2,212,000 of revenue bonds that these still further were originally paid in anticipation of the levy, (as of the amount from the long stock provided for that purpose, but up to August from the report itself, that this fund had ceased to pay, these very claims have already been issued, and is now standing to the amount of necessary to pay those very self-respecting and honest citizens, the Viaduct Road go then!

The Astors, Stewarts and Duncans may be content with their present company or host; that is a matter which best concerns themselves. Undoubtedly their present action will detract from that dignity which the public now accord them, for, can a man touch mud and not be defiled?

The Viaduct Railway.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The leaders of the Tammany Ring, (all thanks to THE TIMES,) are now suffering insomnia because of the recent exposure of their villainy, are appealing to the public for investments of money in the above enterprise, announced to be under their management. Think not from the force of view of business prudence alone, as one should grudge such men with a dollar of your property, while from the moral point of view, I admit it would be such a daring example to the cause of honesty, of such men of principle to give the enthusiastic support to these men that such an act would imply. But I am led to speak to you, through your journal, wherewith to utter my protest, and my warning against it. One of the gravest reproaches upon modern society is the ease with which offenses committed by wealthy conspirators against some minor moral law, but if directed upon some minor moral law; but if directed upon some minor moral law; but if directed upon some minor moral law;

A New Version of the City Debt.

A Sample of the Controller's Book-Keeping—The New Regime of the Monthly Statement Inaugurated.

Controller CONNOLLY has issued the following statement of the debt of the City and County of New-York, at the close of business, July 31, 1871, and the accompanying statement of payments for the month of July, 1871, on sundry specified appropriations:

Hon. A. Oakey Hall, Mayor:

SIR—In response to your communication of 2d of July last, to this office, I have the honor to submit herewith a statement of the debt of the City and County of New-York, at the close of business, July 31

CALEB CUSHING has been retained by the Boston banks as their counsel in the suit to contest the locality of the tax on dividends between Aug. 1 and Jan. 1.

The rural portions of Rhode Island complain that Providence has too much power in their Legislature. It is a complaint never made on any other State in the Union.

They have actually arrested a huckman out in Bloomington, Ill., merely for seizing a lady passenger at one of the depots and dragging her to his hack.

There is a little two-line paragraph in the South Bend (Ind.) Register of last week, which reads: "A great many emigrant wagons are pointing eastward. All do not find things lovely in the West."

The Brattle-street Church has taken the place of Schuyler's Building in the affectionate remembrances of the Boston newspapers. If possible, it affords groundwork for even a greater number of items daily, than did that.

The Illinois Republican State Convention to nominate a candidate for Congressman-at-large will be held in Springfield on Wednesday, Sept. 20, and the Democratic Convention on the same city on Wednesday, Oct. 4.

An enterprising clerk in Chicago stole and secreted $4,000 worth of his employer's goods, then resigned his position and went to Nebraska with his plunder and started in business for himself. He has been arrested.

The Springfield, (Mass.) Republican speaks of "an old man named WEBSTER, a relative of the great DANIEL, and himself at one time the proprietor of a leading hotel in New-York City." Shall we infer from this that the great DANIEL "himself" once kept a hotel in this City?

Rev. Dr. J. L. M. CURRY, of Richmond College, Virginia, has declined the Presidency of Mercer University, Georgia, to which he was recently elected. He has previously declined the same office in Georgetown College, Kentucky, and the University of Alabama.

A New-Orleans paper says that Mrs. GAINES' reply to the suit of CALEB CUSHING, to obtain $50,000 from her for services rendered as her attorney-at-law, is to the effect that he has collected rents upon her property, more in amount than he is entitled to. She claims the balance.

A girl in Syracuse, only fourteen years old, committed suicide by taking poison last week. The cause is unknown, as she always appeared cheerful, happy and contented, and even on the evening when she took the fatal potion, nothing singular in her appearance was observed.

In a recent interview Gen. BENJAMIN F. BUTLER said: "It is not laws we want; there are plenty of laws, good enough, too. Administrative ability to enforce law is the great want of the age—in this country especially. Everybody talks of law—law. If they would only insist on the enforcement of law, the Government would stand on a firmer basis, and 'questions' would settle themselves."

A Virginia man, who thinks "times change," writes to the Richmond Dispatch thus: "When a boy, I hated HORACE GREELEY, the originator of Abolitionism, &c. When the war closed, his manly advocacy of amnesty, his going security for JEFF. DAVIS, and his many good words and works for the South, caused me blame my hound puppy 'Greeley.' Today I would not be unwilling to see him in GRANT'S chair."

Col. JOHN M. CONNELL, of Ohio, has declined an invitation from the Democratic State Committee, extended to him by Senator THURMAN, its President, to take the stump during the present campaign, because he believes that the new departure has put the party in a false position, and that there was a blunder or something worse in the nomination for Governor. These things, he says, have sickened the hearts of the honest, quiet, thinking voters of the party to an extent not yet fully recognized by the leaders.

A suit was brought in the Superior Court, in Baltimore, on Friday, by HENRY W. ROGERS, against Mrs. ELLEN G. WHARTON, for the recovery of the sum of $4,638 93, being the amount due upon a four months' promissory note for $4,709, dated March 16, 1871, upon which the payment of $1,000, with interest, was made on the 30th of July, the day of Mrs. WHARTON'S arrest. The signature of Mrs. WHARTON appears in a bold but rather nervous hand.

A telegram from Halifax on Friday last reports that immense quantities of mackerel have struck in along the coast in that neighborhood, and that there were neither barrels nor salt enough to be had to cure all that are caught. The market price at Halifax is now ten cents per dozen, and per barrel it has gone down to $5. This will cause a heavy loss to the merchants who have not sold the fish purchased at the old high prices.

Chief of Police SAVAGE, of Boston, invited the proprietors of all the noted gambling-houses in the city to call at his office, a few days ago. When they assembled he told them that he doubted the expediency of breaking into their establishments and seizing and destroying property; that he wanted to treat them fairly, and that he requested them to close their places and give up the business. Finally, he assured them that he would use all means at his command to aid them in the accomplishment of an object so much to be desired. It is asserted that on the following evening there was not a gambling-house open in the city.

Encouraging accounts of the crops in Connecticut are given by the Hartford Post. It says: "Hay will be quite equal to the average, and of better than average quality. Rye is uncommonly heavy, and much of it has lodged, and has to be reaped by hand. Corn is growing wonderfully—the result of the warm weather and frequent showers. The same is true of oats, tobacco and potatoes. Of the latter crop, there is every promise of an uncommon yield. Fruit will not be abundant this year. The worms continue their attacks on the orchards, and the future of fruit-growing in this State is made quite uncertain. There is a great yield of all sorts of vegetables."

The editor of a newspaper in Richmond, Va., received on Thursday last a polite note from a lady of respectability in that city, signed by her full name, announcing that she would at 5 o'clock in the evening of that day proceed to take her own life by the most available means, and respectfully soliciting the pleasure of a reporter's company to witness the ceremony. Punctually at the appointed hour, the reporter and several other invited guests presented themselves at the residence designated, but owing to the interference of friends, or some other circumstances, the attempt was indefinitely postponed. But the purpose of the writer came very near being carried out. Of course the lady is deranged.

Mrs. S. E. SORD, who lately resided in Tennessee, but has removed to Mississippi, has sent to an editor there a small present, with a letter in which she says: "I send you a piece of venison of my own and my little son's killing. Think of a single woman and a small boy killing a buck six years old and weighing 138 pounds, net. We had no arms save a small pistol belonging to Dr. WILLIAMS, of Forest. Buck came within four feet of where son stood. Son shot him, and there followed a lively chase. Buck after my son. I ran with a fence rail, and seeing buck fall placed it on his neck and held it there, and dispatched him. The killing was near the Col. Cheatham place, (three and a half miles from Forest,) and my husband, Col. H. A. SORD, was not present. We were greatly excited, including buck, but I think you will find the venison good."

After complimenting Gen. BUTLER on the frankness with which he expresses his sentiments, the Boston Commonwealth says: "The friends of Dr. LORING claim they will have five hundred votes for him on the first ballot. Mr. JEWELL finds little encouragement to remain in the field. No one in this section believes Mr. WASHBURN really desires a nomination, as it would ruin all chances for Mr. DAWES for years to come, who now, certainly, has a better prospect of being Governor, some time, than any man in the State. We hear it confidently stated that the opponents of Messrs. BUTLER and LORING will yet be brought to unite on either Mr. RICE or Mr. DAWES—in the latter case without his consent, of course. We may go further and face worse than to take Mr. RICE, who would make a Governor of whom Massachusetts would be proud."

Some additional information respecting the result of Dr. BASCH'S suit for damages against the Connecticut River Railroad is given by the Springfield Republican, which says that the jury, which was out all night, stood most of the time four for $5,000, two for $25,000, one for nothing, and two vacillating. They finally compromised on $10,000, which verdict was reported on the re-assembling of the court. This seems to satisfy both parties—Dr. BASCH, because it gives him handsome payment for his injuries, and vindicates him from the aspersion of shamming; and the road, because that acknowledges its liability for damages, and now says it expected a heavier verdict against it, and would have been willing to settle for what the Doctor gets. No exceptions were taken by either party, there is no claim of excessive damages, and so the case cannot be tried again. The expenses of the trial on each side were from $3,000 to $5,000.

"Mr. HENDRICKS' "war record" is mercilessly shown up by the Indianapolis Journal, which makes a standing offer to pay $1,000 for any speech in which during the war he favored the suppression of the rebellion by force of arms. Nobody has come forward yet to claim the amount, and the Journal apparently is not at all surprised, as it says unreservedly that Mr. HENDRICKS was opposed to the prosecution of the war, and did all in his power, without taking up arms, to prevent the suppression of the rebellion: that he assailed every act of the Government with intense bitterness; denounced every war measure as unconstitutional; did more than any man in Indiana to prevent volunteering; and exerted by far the most treasonable and vicious influence of any man in the State. It continues: "VOORHEES was more outspoken against the war itself, but HENDRICKS, with more cunning, directed his assaults against all the measures and means necessary to carry on the war. He more than any other made the draft a necessity in Indiana, and then furiously denounced it as unconstitutional. He had the confidence of the conspirators throughout the war, and is now the favorite of the Sons of Liberty for the Presidency. That he kept out of their lodges may be inferred from his customary prudence, but he was their inspiration, their hope, their idol. He is now attempting to commit the great fraud upon the country of running as a War Democrat, when in truth he was the most dangerous and deadly enemy the Government had in all the North-west.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

During the week ending Saturday, Aug. 5, the only really noticeable sale of City property effected was that made by A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO., on Monday, July 31, on which day three lots fronting on Central Park, on Fifty-ninth-street, near Fifth-avenue, with three lots in the rear frontingon Fifty-eighth-street, were sold together, in one plot, for $143,000, a low figure, and one which would indicate a depreciation in values, in this class of property, which has been regarded as among the most valuable of any on the Island. The total sales of City realty for the past six business days, at the Exchange, have amounted to $203,140, as against the sum of $138,600 for the week previous, ending with Saturday, July 29. The aggregate is a good one for the season of the year. All the sales made were at, made under Court orders. In the matter of suburban auctions, two have occurred, worthy of note, namely, at East Orange, N. J., on Tuesday, Aug. 1, where fifty-one villa plots were sold by A. D. MELLICK, Jr. & BRO. for $35,600, and on Thursday, Aug. 3, at Ingleside, Long Island, near Jamaica, when JOHNSON & MILLER disposed of property belonging to the Wood estate, to the value of about $60,000, in private transactions the markets has been dull and quiet.

SALES FOR THE PRESENT WEEK.

For this week the auctions thus far announced are in number few, and with one or two exceptions of no special importance. At the change thitnuss will be light, as only two sales are noticed to take place, as follows: Tuesday, Aug. 8, A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO. will sell, by order of executors, a two-story frame house, street, Astoria, Long Island, near Main-street, with lot, the latter 32x80, located on Greenoek-while; on Thursday, Aug. 10, MARK, WILKIS & CO., by order of the Supreme Court, foreclosure, under the direction of HENRY STANTON, Esq., referee, will dispose of a plot of land, 40x75, with the building thereon, situated on the west side of Washington-street, thirty-five feet North of Clarkson-street, a valuable property. In addition to the sales of the most important advertised is that for Thursday, Aug. 10, on which day A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO. will offer for sale the valuable property at Long Branch belonging to H. T. HELMBOLD, embracing sixteen stores and dwellings, the large hotel known as the "Clarendon," and seventeen acres of choice land adjoining the "Continental" Hotel and railway station, fronting on a beach drive and ocean, all suitable for hotel and business purposes, or for the erection of private cottage residences. The property will be sold in one parcel, or the stores and dwelling lots will be disposed of separately, as may be determined on the day of sale. To frequenters of the beach, the real estate offered is too well known to need a more extended reference, while to others not so well informed in regard to it, it need only be stated that it is among the most desirable of any to be obtained at the fashionable watering-place. Sale on the ground at 2 P. M. On Thursday, also, JOHNSON & MILLER will continue the sale of villa plots at Ingleside, Long Island, disposing of property belonging to the Wood estate, about fifty acres in all, remaining unsold from the auction of Thursday last. The notices given early week of this real estate and its advantages renders a further detailed description unnecessary, while the success attending the first sale proves conclusively that it possesses superior merit. The above are all the sales of interest to take place, although it may be mentioned that the property known as the "Arlington House," at Long Branch, formerly the "Atlantic," a large hotel, with about nine acres of land, will be disposed of at a Sheriff's sale, at 2 o'clock on Wednesday, Aug. 9, by virtue of a decree by the Court of Chancery of New-Jersey. For the remainder of the present month it is hardly probable that a large amount of business in real estate will be transacted, for not only are investors absent from the City, but the auctioneers as a rule avail themselves of the dull season to take their annual vacation.

PROPOSALS
OF THE
CITY OF PROVIDENCE.
INTEREST
IN GOLD,
AT
FIVE OR SIX PER CENT.,
AS MAY BE DECIDED.
THE CITY OF PROVIDENCE PROPOSES TO ISSUE ITS BONDS PAYABLE IN GOLD
on the 1st day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred (1900), for FOUR MILLIONS OF DOLLARS of, the purpose of defraying the expense of introducing water into said city.
INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD.
Coupons, payable in Gold, July 1 and Jan. 1, will be attached to the bonds for the interest thereon, or the bonds may be registered under existing law and the interest payable in gold, on said dates.
AUTHORITY FOR ISSUE.
The bonds are issued under authority given by the General Assembly of Rhode Island, and an ordinance passed by the City Council of Providence.
SECURITY.
Their payment is guaranteed by a lien—first, upon all the real estate or personal property owned by the city, and, secondly, upon all the real estate of the citizens of said city.
The income derived from the use of the water is also pledged to the payment of the bonds and the interest thereon.
FINANCIAL CONDITION OF CITY.
The financial condition of the city on the 1st day of July inst. was as follows:
Taxable valuation of real estate.....$93,618,719 00
Taxable Valuation of the personal estate, 1870.....20,565,100 00
Total taxable property.....$104,020,813 00
Property exempted from taxation, owned by the city, institutions, &c., but held for the Water loan.....$5,491,662 00
Total value.....$109,562,475 00
CITY DEBT.
The funded debt of the city is as follows:
1st. A loan to the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill Railroad Company, due Jan. 1, 1876.....$200,000 00
To meet this the city holds the same amount of the bonds of said railroad secured by a first mortgage upon the road in Rhode Island, and also funds in the hands of the Trustees of the Sinking Fund of this loan amounting to $14,604 07.
2d. A loan issued in 1855 for public improvements of various kinds made prior to that date, payable Sept. 1, 1895, for.....600,000 00
To meet this the Trustees of the Sinking Fund have in their hands securities amounting to $283,679 24.
In addition to which there is an annual payment to this fund by the city, of $10,000.
3d. A loan issued in 1869 for expenses growing out of the enlistment of soldiers, payment or bounties, &c., payable Jan. 1, 1896, for.....200,000 00
To meet this the Trustees of the Sinking Fund have in their hands securities amounting to $90,343 81.
In addition to which there is an annual payment to this fund by the city of $5,000.
4th. The floating debt incurred for public works, such as opening streets, erecting public buildings and introducing the water for which it is proposed to issue State bonds, amounting to.....1,500,000 00
Of this sum the Water Commissioners have drawn.....$1,000,000
There is cash on hand.....226,000 —1,226,000 00
Leaving the actual floating debt, say.....274,000 00
An examination of the above statement shows that the funded debt of the city is more than provided for, in the several sinking funds, with their collaterals, are sufficient, without the additional annual payments from the Treasury, to pay their respective loans at maturity.
The amount of the floating debt above what will be repaid from the sale of the water bonds is so small as to make it safe to say that the City of Providence with a valuation of $100,562,475, has no debt.
POPULATION.
The population of the city by the census of 1870 was 68,904, and is increasing more rapidly than at any previous period of her history, and there has been expended within the past seven years by the city for permanent public improvements more than $1,000,000.
With the above facts, the Water Loan of the City of Providence may be placed in the first class of securities, and is beyond a question.
CHARACTER OF PROPOSALS.
The Committee of the City Council of the City of Providence on the City Debt invite proposals for any portion of four millions of dollars of the Water Loan of said city, to be issued as per the annexed circular; said proposals to be indorsed "Proposals for Water Loan," and to be transmitted sealed to Benjamin Tripp, City Treasurer of Providence, on or before 12 o'clock M., THURSDAY, the 24th day of August, 1871.
The Committee to reserve the right to reject any or all of the bids at their discretion. The loan will be issued within sixty days from the opening of the proposals, and notice of the acceptance of any proposition will be transmitted at once to the party. The bonds are partly engraved and may be issued sooner than the above time if the labor on them can be completed. Interest from the 1st day of July to the date of issue, to be paid by the purchasers in currency at the rate of 1.10 for gold.

FINANCIAL.

FIRST MORTGAGE
SINKING FUND
Land Grant Bonds
OF THE
ST. JOSEPH AND DENVER CITY
RAILROAD COMPANY,
WESTERN DIVISION.
These Bonds can now be had from the undersigned, or through the principal banks and bankers of the United States.
They have thirty (30) years to run, bearing Eight per Cent. (8 per cent.) Interest, payable on the 15th day of August and February in each year. The Principal and Interest are payable in Gold. The Principal in New-York; the Interest in New-York, London and Frankfort-on-Main, free of tax. They are Coupon Bonds, but can be registered or changed into Registered Bonds, and are disposable at par and accrued interest in payment for the Company's land sales. The payment of the principal and interest is secured by a first and only mortgage on the Company's Lands, granted by the United States in 1868, lying on the line of this road, amounting to 1,500,000 acres, the railway of the Western Division extending from Marysville, Kansas, to a junction with Union Pacific Road at Fort Kearney, a distance of 170 miles, together with the Equipments appertaining, Franchises, Rights of Way and Personal Property.
The mortgage is made to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New-York, as Trustees.
The Bondholders are amply protected by the terms of the Mortgage Deed, which prohibits a sale of the Company's lands at less than four ($4) dollars per acre, and a release of the lien of the Mortgage upon any portion sold until the purchase-money is paid to the Trustees, who are authorized to apply the same to the payment of these Bonds, either by purchase or to the Sinking Fund, for their redemption at maturity. This will more than extinguish the debt and leave the railway and equipments free. The security for the payment of these Bonds is therefore beyond all contingency.
The location of the line of the St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad is a commanding one, from the fact that it is a practical extension westwardly of the Hannibal and St. Joseph, the next Land Grant road after the Illinois Central. The St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad is fed at its eastern terminus (St. Joseph) by railway lines coming direct from Hannibal, St. Louis, Chicago, and local roads converging at St. Joseph. Its business is therefore secured. Its connection with the Union Pacific Road opens up the through middle route across the Continent, and is of national importance. This is reflected in the fact that the quantities of letters and telegrams which we have received during the few days the Bonds have been for sale, applying for these securities, indicate the quick response of the American people in support of internal improvements, while at the same time they make a good investment.
Price for the present, 97½ and accrued interest in currency.
Expressage relating to the Bonds free. Marketable Securities received in exchange.
We have been at great expense in the examination of this property and the bonds, and are satisfied the investments in this Loan will not only be safe but profitable. We base our calculations on the fact that the First Mortgage Bonds of this Company, on the Eleventh Division, lately successfully placed by our firm at 97½, have advanced to 103 and accrued interest, making them rate at 105, or nearly ten per cent. advance.
Under all circumstances, we unhesitatingly recommend them.

First Mortgage Bonds
MOBILE & MONTGOMERY
RAILROAD COMPANY,
Indorsed by State of Alabama,
PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST
PAYABLE IN GOLD.
After a careful examination, we confidently recommend these bonds, because—
They are a first mortgage upon a road already completed and in successful operation, with net earnings well established for several years, AS MUCH MORE THAN ENOUGH TO PAY THE INTEREST on all the bonds authorized to be issued.
The proceeds of these bonds will complete an extension of fifteen miles of heavy work from Hope Hull into the City of Mobile, DISPENSING WITH THE PRESENT STEAM-BOAT SERVICE ON BAILI, BOOSTING THE EARNINGS AND INCREASING EFFICIENCY OF THE ROAD.
It is the road to the entire body of fertile lands in the State over $18,000 PER MILE COST OR ITS EQUIPMENT PER MILE.
It connects MOBILE and MONTGOMERY, and is a link in the route from NEW-ORLEANS to NEW-YORK, and also between the GULF and LOUISVILLE, the nearest connection of the road from MOBILE to the Ohio River.
The Legislature has pledged the faith of the State by the LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY, who thus display their estimate of the value of the route.
They are indorsed and guaranteed by the STATE OF ALABAMA, the value of whose indorsement has been recently tested and fully established.
Some of the most careful investors in ENGLAND and HOLLAND, during the past year, have bought these bonds for permanent investment, at rates now only about $100,000 are on the market, which are for sale at present at 95 and ACCRUED INTEREST, by

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Official Corruption in High Places—The Duty of the Christian Church—Discourse by Rev. Wm. H. Boole.

The Methodist Episcopal Chapel, in East Fiftieth-street, was crowded to its utmost capacity last evening by a congregation that listened with deep attention to an eloquent discourse by Rev. Wm. H. Boole, on "The duty of the Christian Church at this City in view of present official corruption in high places." The reverend gentleman took for his text the second verse of the twenty-ninth chapter of Proverbs:

"When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn."

He spoke substantially as follows: The present condition of affairs in this City, furnishes a practical illustration of the force of this proverb. My desire is to speak my honest and profound convictions as to the duty of the Christian citizens in the present emergency, and to do this, I shall necessarily speak of Governments, their origin and design, and show the relations of religious men to the responsibilities of a valuable citizenship, such as ours. It is highly probable we have reached a crisis in our history as a City. The question to be determined is whether a small gang of corrupt men, whose average intellect, social status and moral character are not fairly up to the average respectability of the community, shall be allowed to govern this City, or whether the worthy, responsible citizens shall break the yoke so long endured, and make this City a praise in men's mouths instead of a stench. A high-toned daily paper of this City,—the NEW-YORK TIMES—one of the few influential leaders of public opinion, startles us with alarming statements of fraud laid against the highest officials of the City. We are told that somewhere about $10,000,000 have been stolen by the heads of the City Government. The reputation of the paper is involved in the truth of the statements, and I am sure there is sense enough in that firm not to permit such statements to go forth if they had not solid basis for their assertions. The statements have not been answered, and no attempt has been made at denial. What we want to know is, Can an answer be given to the accusations? They are either true or false. We have nothing to say to motives in this case. Any man who held in his hands the evidences brought out by the TIMES was bound in duty to show them to the public, and I praise those who did it. Added to this, we have seen the City Government unable and unwilling to defend itself against a faction and a religious mob. They laid down the sceptre of authority at the feet of a riotous mob, refusing to sustain honorable men in a lawful position. The reverend gentleman next alluded to the nurseries of crime in the City which were, he said, fostered by the Police force. The Sabbath Prohibitory law was rendered a dead letter owing to the Ring, as it was called, having got the Police under their control. In this condition of affairs, (continued the speaker,) when the City has become a stench in man's nostrils, does not duty urge the citizens, members of the Christian Church and all other good men to some decided and effectual course of action? Has your religion nothing to do with these politics? Has not God laid upon us a duty and responsibility in human affairs? Human Governments are of God; not the men who hold the office—the power is not in the man, but in the office. While a man fills an office let us see that he uses it righteously. Rulers have a double account to give, one to their constituents and the other to God. If the Lord has ordained temporal government for the good of men, the Christian should appreciate the power of office, and where places of trust are to be filled by his voice, vote and influence it becomes his sacred duty to exercise that prerogative, and to exercise it religiously and in the fear of God. I do not know whether the present condition of affairs and the fatal consequences of the late attempt at riot, may not have come on us in part judgment for the unreasonable neglect of good men in the performance of this duty. The true design of human government is to secure in the most practical way the greatest good of all citizens. Rulers should be honorable men, holding themselves in strict accountability to their own conscience and to their sovereigns, the people, for the full and faithful performance of their duties, and ruler-makers should hold themselves accountable for the exercise of their powers in electing men to office. A citizenship such as we possess is the most highly important trust, except a man's personal, eternal salvation. Let the righteous and the good exert all their right and power to secure to the people righteous rulers, that the people may rejoice and be glorious. The officials of the City government do not seem to be the servants of the people; the books and accounts are closed in the people's face, all examination being refused, and the wealth that corrupt practice has brought these officials is used by them to trample in the dust those that raised them to power. The voice and influence of good men on earth are heard in heaven, and if good men enough do not speak out. Let us for instruction look on the sad picture of our City Government. Four or five men, whose average honesty was never above par, dispose of $10,000,000 of the county funds in an illegal way. They could not get this stolen much by rent of the amounts without adding in Sundays. Distrust has been created, the honor of the City stained, and we don't know how deep the frauds extend, or how far we have been betrayed. Who can tell whether there has not been an ever issue of County and City stocks, which may in a future time may leak out. The City was startled by those revelations, but the thing which startled me was to see that the people were startled. So far as these revelations go I see nothing to be startled at. Your rulers are no worse to day than when you put them in office years ago,—and as nothing which could be done by the power of hell would startle me, I was not at all startled at the revelations. The reverend gentleman next condemned religious bodies for seeking favors of those men, and alluded to the enormous sums voted away to support one exclusive religious body, that body obtaining political preferment and power by fraud and lavish force, and at the expense of honor and equal rights. The speaker next pointed out the composition of the City government, showing that every department is headed by, or under the control of an Irish Catholic, with the exception of the Mayor's office, and a Roman Catholic in the Mayor's office would in his opinion, be better than the present occupant. He read a list of Irish Catholics in high positions. What asked the speaker, is the duty of Christian citizens? It is, first, take a religious view of your political rights, and exercise them in the fear of God; second, deny all political party lines, and join with other good men, of whatever name, in the effort to elevate to office men whose stainless characters have stood years above reproach. Go to the ballot-box, let no interest keep you away; and although truth is often in a minority, a persistent effort in the right will ultimately be successful. Third, manifest a proper and active interest in these things. If your enemies are active, you must be active; if they are consolidated, you must become consolidated, too. It must be done, or I know not what the consequence may be. Show your interest by prayer for rulers and people, and finally I exhort you to the performance of these duties. It will not be by spasmodic action, but by persistent efforts, that this corruption can be abolished. It is time to awake out of sleep. For a long time our City has been a hot-bed of vice and official corruption, while the truly good have slept and the enemy sowed his tares. "Ignore party lines; uphold any men, honest and honorable, who would take the place of those corrupt men, if, indeed, any one can be found who would be willing to take it.

LESSONS OF THE DISASTER.

God's Mercy in Suffering—A Sermon by Rev. Charles F. Lee.

The Westfield disaster was the theme of Rev. CHARLES F. LEE's discourse, yesterday morning, at the Fifth Universalist Church in East Fourteenth-street, near Fifth-avenue. His text was found in Jeremiah, thirty-first chapter, fifteenth verse: "A voice was heard in Rahmah; lamentation and bitter weeping; Rachel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children because they were not." Many a century has passed, said he, since these words fell from the lips of the prophet, and yet how applicable are they to our City today. It seems as though we can hear the solemn words of the text, uttered adew by the man of God. The City, like Rachel, mourns for her children, and refuses to be comforted. It is seldom that I feel at liberty to take up the Sabbath hour in the discussion of public topics, but upon this occasion I am constrained to say a few words upon this fire calamity. It is but a short week since hundreds of people were gathered on board of the ill-fated Westfield bound for the woody shades of Staten Island, on that pleasant, holy Sabbath, to inhale the pure sea-air. The preacher then gave a descriptions of the scenes attending the accident, and the dread sights that followed, and said: In all this I can see no visitation of God, nor do I think you can. I should be sorry to claim that the Father of all mercies, whose great attribute is love, would be so vengeful as to afflict His children with such fearful chastisement. It is an insult to the Most High to ascribe to Him the horrible method of appeasing His wrath. Would we make such a demon of our "God of Love?" No; I, for one, will not. Yet many good Christian men think as a minister of another church did, when he said to me last week: "What could you expect from Sabbath-breaking? I have long expected it." Well, he may speak with him. We know that the Almighty directs and governs human agencies. But we are the authors of our own punishments in nearly all cases of affliction. Why should these people who were on the Westfield have been punished for being there? Let us see if they were. The excursionists consisted of workingmen with their families, who had left their tenement cities after a long week of toil to renew life in their frames, or in the frames of their puling children. I say to you, keep God's day holy by benefiting soul, as well as body. The parent who takes his loved ones from the sickly atmosphere, in the overcrowded quarters of this City, to the health-inspiring vales of God's natural temple, is doing his duty in my opinion. And who shall say that while he drinks in deep draughts of the invigorating elixir, and feels the thrill of exultation in his veins, he does not aspire more nobly toward Him who blessed our race with the holy Sabbath day. No! no. I say to you, my brethren, that the mere change from a vile to a purer atmospheric location on Sunday is not a crime which calls for the terrific destruction of life as a punishment. I advise you, if you deem it necessary to your welfare, to go, by all means, into the country, or on the waters of the Bay. If I be in error, may God forgive me! But I think I am not. How great is Gospel consolation in this hour of affliction and sore distress. We should learn this lesson from the sad disaster, that in our most direful straits, and sorest troubles, here, in this Holy Word, comfort and relief may be found, and suggested. While we mourn like Rachel, we should seek the comfort our Divine Master alone can furnish, and strive earnestly under every trial and difficulty, to remember that in Heaven, Christ's home, all is peace and love, and sorrow can never enter, for there we reach unutterable bliss.

A collection was then taken up, in aid of the Sufferer's Relief Fund.

Quiet Resting Places—Sermon of Rev. David Mitchell—Severe Attack Upon The Ferry-Boat Owners.

A plain but able and interesting discourse was delivered, yesterday, at the Canal-street Presbyterian Church, by Rev. DAVID MITCHELL, to a moderately large audience. The clergyman chose for his text Isaiah, thirty-second chapter eighteenth verse: "Quiet resting places." After a few preliminary remarks regarding the necessity at this season of relaxation and retreat to some quiet, secluded spot, where perfect tranquility and repose could be obtained, he pictured the trials of the man of daily toil, and the joy with which he hailed the advent of his day of recreation—his Sunday. For this class Mr. MITCHELL said he had great sympathy, and could not find it in his heart to condemn the father, with his wife and little ones, who sought to respite what the toiling man took from an arduous existence. He said that those classes needed sympathy, and when they were overtaken by a shocking accident like that which occurred so soon after last Sabbath morning's service, he would not like to be near anyone who would say, "The Lord's Judgement has fallen upon them." If he did not resort to carnal weapons, he would at least resort to spiritual, and say to them, in the words of our loving Maker: "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone." During the week Mr. MITCHELL said that he had visited Bellevue, and called at the bedside of nearly all the victims of the horror, and he asked his audience whether they would not have thought him a monster in human form if he had gone there and told the sufferers that they had got what their sinful Sabbath-breaking deserved. This accident, he continued, or rather we should call it, this horror, he very much feared had a terrible blame attachable somewhere, and he trusted in the name of Heaven, justice and the rights of man, that the matter would be sifted to the bottom. Criminal neglect, he urged, and ignorance be found to have been the cause, then let there be swift and speedy punishment, sufficient to satisfy the public conscience. The explosion was certainly the very worst calamity of the numerous horrors that have followed one another in recent months. Think, said Mr. MITCHELL, of a wealthy company wishing people to trust their persons in their hands to enjoy a half-hour's sail to a neighboring island. The day is balmy and beautiful. As the hour approaches passengers begin to throng the steamer's decks. The gay and young, the beautiful and manly, sit side by side. There is the honest mechanic, proud as he looks upon his pale-faced wife, who, as in the days of their first love, reclines on his arm. The children cluster around them bright and happy in the thought of having a good time with father. Here are the fashionable and gay on a visit to their friends. There we find a group, perhaps returning home from church. Little do these people think that in another minute they will be twirled like play-balls into the air, or scorched to death by the hissing steam, or struggling for life in the foaming waters. A hissing noise is heard, and in a moment the catastrophe occurs, and the gay and the young, the maiden and lover, the husband and father, the wife and children, all are a horrible mass of charred and blackened beings. Life we know is uncertain, but think how much more uncertain it becomes by reason of the assassin, by reason of the cruelties of neglect and ignorance that are practiced upon the confiding public, or by rioters who are organized to revolt against law and order by clever and designing leaders. Mr. MITCHELL made an eloquent appeal to his audience in behalf of the sufferers and in behalf of their noble rescuers, the boatmen. Continuing his remarks relative to the strict observance of the Sabbath, he said that though he strongly condemned those Sunday junketing parties with dancing and music, still he could not blame the laborer for taking his necessary airing in Central Park or the shaded heights of Staten Island. As long as the latter existed as they do at present, there could not be a strict observance of the Sabbath by the working man. He proposed that there should be holidays and half-holidays during the week, on the ground that it established a better relation between capital and labor, that it was a sanitary necessity, and that man's moral and spiritual welfare required it; and, concluding in his fervent address, he urged this point on the final ground that his plan of week-day recreation would enable men better to fulfill the law: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

Sunday Pleasure-Seeking—Sermon on the Westfield Disaster by Rev. Isaac Westcott, D. D.

At the pretty little Plymouth Baptist Church, on Fifty-first-street, near Tenth-avenue, Rev. ISAAC WESTCOTT preched last night to a large congregation on the lesson of the Westfield disaster. His text was taken from first Samuel, second chapter and third verse: "And as thy soul liveth there is but a step between me and death." There are times, Mr. WESTCOTT said, when between men and death there is but a short step. As an illustration of this thought I shall endeavor to bring before you the terrible accident which occurred in our City last Sabbath. A graphic picture was then drawn of the terrible suddenness with which so many souls were last week precipitated into eternity, and the speaker drew from the evidence which is before the public the inference that the Company was responsible for the accident which arose, either from a defective boiler or a defective engineer. One warning from this accident, he proceeded, is the necessity of a better state of feeling in this community on the subject of Sunday. We often hear it said, "Oh, we don't want any Puritan Sabbath here;" but I would rather have the old Connecticut Sabbath, on which a man was fined for kissing his wife, than the absolute looseness which prevails at the present time. How many even of ministers there are who ride out and take their pleasure on Sunday. May the Lord open their eyes to the evil influence which their Heaven defying conduct exercises on their fellow-men. But you say these poor pent-up emigrant families must take this day. No, God gives them six days for work, but the seventh he keeps himself. But these persons were not generally from tenements, as shown by the testimony. And if they were do you believe a man can take his family to Staten Island and spend the day for less than $2 or $3 50. By saving that money he could hire a healthy and airy dwelling in which Sunday could be properly spent. I do not censure our secular papers because they do not defend the sabbath. If they would be neutral that is all I would ask; but I think they have stepped over the neutral line in describing repeatedly these pleasurable scenes which take place upon the shore of the Bay on Sunday. It is not necessary to accumulate facts to show what we have all felt with sorrow, that a deplorable looseness of feeling with regard to the Sabbath prevails in this community. The lesson which I would lay down is this, and in stating it I do not wish to reflect on those that are gone. Let us live always so that we may at any moment be prepared to die.

SUNDAY RECREATIONS.

Central Park—New-Yorkers Preparing for the Week's Work.

The Sabbath is, in truth, a day of recreation and enjoyment to a very large number of the overworked citizens of this great City, and excursions, picnics, and little family parties at an early hour in the day leave the heated precincts of brick and plaster to breathe a purer atmosphere in Staten Island, Hoboken, Harlem, and the groves of Westchester. Yet there is another resort fully as attractive and equally as popular, where the great masses are to be seen from early Sunday morning until late in the evening innocently enjoying their accustomed respite from toil, and inhaling the invigorating breezes which roll in across the island from the broad Atlantic. It is Central Park! A paradise embraced in the heart of a monster City, where nature has done much and art still more. It is Sunday, and every one is in holiday attire; even the crazy malformed policemen seem nattier than usual, as they stroll through the lanes and by-paths, preserving order among the vast throng which empties itself in an uninterrupted stream within the confines of this beautiful place.

On these beautiful mornings, among the first frequenters to the Park is a tall, lean, lank, thin-skinned, bloodless creature, who shambles along with evident pain, and wends his way to the mineral springs. It is wonderful to see the zest with which he imbibes two or three glasses of Seltzer or Kissingen, and then withdraws perfectly satisfied with the libation he has offered to the goddess of health, and self-convinced of the benefits derived thereby. This singular being, you are told, is a confirmed hypochondriac, and has gradually reduced his frame to the pitiful collection of skin and bones you behold through sheer force of imagination. He is a constant attendant upon the mineral springs of the Park, every morning calling regularly for his medicinal waters, and then departing heaven only knows whither. A lady follows next upon the scene. She sails in upon you before you are aware of her presence, gayly sips a glass of Vichy, and as quickly wafts herself away. She aspires to the spirituelle and thus reduced to a mere shadow, imagines that plethora is her disorder, and Vichy and Kissingen and Mr. BANTING's book have made her either more ethereal than would been desirable by other than a monomaniac. This poor woman, is also a hypochondriac. Men, women and children of all ages and conditions soon begin to throng the roads and paths. Nurses, with infants in arms, airing them in dainty little carriages. The little ones embedded in bowers of lace and crowing with glee are noticed wherever you turn your eye. Troops of joyous children can be seen either scampering over the smoother paths or gazing in silent wonder with their eyes and mouths at the monkeys, the moose, or the strange and wondrous birds and animals of the menagerie. On the lakes, pleasure parties in wherries and gondolas float in blissful quietude, backward and forward upon the placid water. Multitudes throng the Esplanade, the Ramble, the Cave, the Glen, the Arsenal and the Museum.

Though the numbers that flock to the Park on Sunday morning are usually very large, they form but a very small part of the vast multitude representing every grade in our social system who throng its paths and broad avenues in the afternoon. Every conceivable specimen of the coachmaker's handiwork can be seen, from the fancy phaeton and dashing drag with liveried servants, to the crowded Park chariot and modest wagon in which the good man has peddled his wares during the week, and which is now furbished up, and gay with the joyous smiles of happy households. The scene is arranged at intervals along the drives and walks, and now all occupied. Wherever you turn your eye it encounters the same unending spectacle of pleasurable repose. Here on the bench near by is grandmamma, perfectly absorbed in the care of her daughter's children. The mother, poor thing, is a pale and emaciated creature, and upon her countenance it is not difficult to detect evidences of overwork. Probably she is the wife of a poor mechanic, and the surmise seems plausible, for near her side is a fine, stalwart-looking fellow, dandling one of her bright little children on his knee. All seems happy and joyous, save the poor woman of the sickly face, who is quite young, and it is to be feared that the anxieties consequent upon the care of the large family that surrounds her have overtaxed her failing energies. A little further on you see a pleasanter picture, the maiden and her lover. Central Park has many attractions, and its pure air, green lawns and shady retreats revive on Sunday the drooping spirits and failing strength of many overburdened creatures, yet passing in the thousands and tens of thousands its gates yesterday, the writer could not but notice that there were those among the multitude—the poor shop-girls, the seamstresses, and the widow and her children—who would require something more than a Sunday stroll through New-York's great garden to make them well in heart.

The Day At the Fishing Snake—Amusing Scenes.

The love of fishing has been deeply implanted in the male American breast, and is as universally popular as base-ball. Staid merchants, whose souls seem never to expand beyond the latest quotations of gold, and whose stern sobriety is cited proverbially on change, get agitated about the time that the fish may be expected to bite freely. When the season is at its height they never fail to find a pretext for a week's indulgence under the general plea of important business—that white lie of centuries. Their juniors grin respectfully, knowing from sympathy that this means sea-bass, or pickerel, or jauntings among the trout streams. But the great mass of those who love to fish have no juniors who will attend to business while they throw flies, or adjust sinkers. They are chained to the counter or the shop by imperious necessity for six days out of seven, and must toil on, never heeding how suitable the weather may be for their favorite pursuit. On the seventh day comes freedom, and they are off for the Fishing Banks.

One of the old reliable steamers that for years past have carried cargoes of ardent disciples of ISAAK WALTON to the heaven of their desires, is the Rip Van Winkle. Yesterday a reporter of the TIMES sailed with her to the Fishing Banks, opposite Long Branch. The gloom of the Westfield explosion hung over the party. In answer to question the clerk said that usually there were from five hundred to six hundred passengers. On this occasion there were barely three hundred. A more thoroughly-respectable yet miscellaneous crowd could scarcely be collected. There were Americans, Irish, Germans and Frenchmen. There were young, moustached, dapper clerks and comfortable-looking bachelors, on close of appearances. But all were united on the question of devotion to fishing, and many informed the reporter that they came regularly every week, rain or shine, and if the Rip Van Winkle would issue season tickets they would gladly buy them. There were many young ladies, though they did not seem greatly interested in the fishing. For their especial benefit a band was on board, and the time during the transit to the scene of fishing and going home was occupied by dancing. This was evidently enjoyed by the fair ones, but the men danced as if their minds were pre-occupied by weighty considerations of fishing matters, whether their bait would prove acceptable, whether A and B would catch more fish than they, or the comparative chances of black bass and porgies.

Arriving at the fishing-ground, the ladies retired into the background, and the gentlemen commenced the serious business of the day. Many went to their state-rooms, took off their store clothes and donned fishing garments stained with salt water, and gummy with traces of bait. In an incredibly short time after the anchor was dropped, scores of lines were over the side. Soon fish of every description began to be hauled on deck. Blues, flounders, black bass and weak fish were not wanting, but the principal victims were porgies; a fish that has been named by some enthusiast, the "trout of the sea." There is a peculiarity about marine fishing. The fish will bite freely on the starboard side, and the disappointed "starboarders" will not get a single bite, as happened yesterday on the Rip Van Winkle; the fishermen on the port side endured the triumph of their starboard competers for about ten minutes, and then insisted on a change of locality. The obliging Captain tooted his whistle, raised his anchor and ran in more toward the branch. When fishing was recommenced, the anglers at the stern began pulling up porgies every half minute, and not a soul on either side got a bite. There was soon a cry for another change, which was immediately complied with by the Captain. This was very disastrous, for now nobody at all got a bite, so the Captain, like a wise man, piped to dinner.

For those who came unprovided, there was a good substantial dinner of roast and boiled meat, pudding and pie and water-melon. But very few availed themselves of it, for these fishing excursions are emphatically family affairs, and almost every one had a well-stocked basket. Though there was not a breath of wind to stir the glassy surface of the sea, there was a heavy ground swell, which was trying to many stomachs, and in many directions a great want of enthusiasm was visible in the attacks upon the baskets. Some unwary ones devoured amazing quantities of peaches, but the result was unfavorable to that fruit as a preventive against sea-sickness. Others tried lemons, and these appeared more efficacious. But the best remedy was in a welcome breeze which stole along the sea, throwing long lines of dark purple shadows across the green waters and neutralizing the abominable roll of the ground swell.

After dinner, fishing was resumed with spirit, and considerable execution was done on the porgies and black bass. About 3 o'clock the anchor was weighed, and the Rip Van Winkle returned to Peck-slip, discharging a swarm of passengers, who evidently would travel the same road next Sunday. As a proof of what can be done by scientific fishers, the fact may be stated that one man caught thirty-seven porgies, five black bass, one weak fish, and seven little fishes called beeralls. As the man remarked, it was not much of a day for porgies, either.

Amusements at Coney Island—Scenes in the Surf and on the Beach.

The barren sands of Coney Island were musical yesterday with the creak of many feet, and more than the usual number of Sunday excursionists found refuge there. The Coney Island boats were crowded with people as usual, being well conducted and officered. On arriving at the island the visitors dispersed themselves in various directions, the main object being enjoyment. The beach proper was crowded all day, from the point where the boats land to the hotels, which are the terminus of the two lines of railroad. Around the point all was as quiet as was possible where four or five thousand people were congregated, and the Police officers of New-York who do duty on the boats, and the three Policemen of Brooklyn who are paid to preserve order on the Point had very little to do except to watch the rambollings of the bathers in the surf and occasionally refresh themselves and assist in the preservation of their ruddy countenances by potations at the bars. The sporting fraternity did not frequent a point which was so well guarded and in fact did not see the point—of securing the risk of a broken head or an interference with their favorite pastime and huddled nearer the railroad depot. There were very few games in the open air, here, however, for the practice is discouraged as much as possible by a half dozen special deputy sheriffs who manage to intrude themselves wherever a crowd gathers around a thimble-rigger. The petty games are not practiced to the extent that they used to be, and little opportunity is given gamblers to victimize greenhorns. At the hotels, however, every species of gambling is carried on and a systematic roping in of strangers is practiced at almost all of them and without interference on the part of the officers, who have no authority to enter unbidden any apartment which may be occupied by a private party. If a stranger is swindled and complains to the Deputy Sheriff, he is advised to apply to the nearest County Justice for redress. From the fact that few complaints are made it is fair to presume, either that few are swindled or that the victims prefer to pocket the loss rather than suffer the tedium of a prosecution before a County Justice. Besides these amusements there are few entertainments on Coney Island. The provisions, except the clams, are poor and ill cooked—except in the clams, which are thoroughly good and served in excellent style by the colored chefs de cuisine who have presided at daily clam-bakes for every Summer for many long years. The bathing is good, but the appliances for the comfort and convenience of the surf-loving multitude have suffered no increase for a long period. Bathers run the risk, while they run into the surf, of being robbed of valuables by prowling thieves, and before the victims of the robbery can give the alarm the plunderers are far distant. As Sunday is the day on which Coney Island is most thronged, it is the day above all others on which people who desire to keep respectable company should stay at home or go elsewhere. If their peace of mind depends upon their visiting Coney Island, let them gratify their melination on almost any other day in the week.

The Staten Island Ferry-Boats.

The disaster of last Sunday had a very perceptible effect on the number of passengers who crossed to Staten Island yesterday on the ferry-boats. The gate-keepers report that the number of passengers was rather less than half the usual number. Instead of 4,000 or 5,000, not much over 2,000 visited the Island. The conductors on the Bell Railroad and Tenth-avenue lines all complained of slack business.

SUNDAY CRIME.

Adroit but Fruitless Burglary in Worth-Street—Dangerous Assaults.

Early yesterday morning, WILLIAM SHERPER, a porter, discovered that burglars had entered the premises of EDWARD WARBURG & CO., dealers and importers of silks and velvets, at Nos. 43 and 45 Worth-street, by cutting a hole through the roof. He immediately gave an alarm, which was answered by several Policemen. The house was surrounded so that the burglars could not escape if still within.

An entrance was made and the building and adjoining houses thoroughly searched, but the thieves were not there. On the top floor were found three pieces of silk and a collection of burglar's tools. Other articles were found on the roof of the tenement house No. 56 Leonard-street, consisting of a knotted double rope and three pieces of silks, which, with those on the other roof, were in the original packages. It is supposed that the thieves did not succeed in carrying away any of the plunder.

From an examination of the premises, it was evident that the burglars had first gained the roof of the tenement-house, from which they had got to that of an adjoining store by throwing the rope over a chimney and raising themselves a distance of six feet. They had then lowered themselves a distance of twelve feet to the roof of the store of WARBERG & Co. The hole cut there was large enough to easily admit of the passage of a man, and the rope had plainly been again brought into use to raise the booty from the floor above to the roof, as not more than one of the silken bales had descended.

AUGUST KOSSUL, a German, living at No. 597 Water-street, was assaulted at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, by JOHN BILLER. KOSSUL was taken to Bellevue Hospital in a dangerous condition. BILLER was arrested, and locked up to await the result of the injuries.

JOHN RYAN, of No. 13 Vandewater-street, became engaged in an affray early yesterday morning, with MICHAEL BYRNES, and during the fight had the upper part of his right ear bitten off. He was taken to Park Hospital, and BYRNES was held for trial at the Tombs Police Court.

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning CHARLES BERGE, of No. 221 Chrystie-street, assaulted ARTHUR BLIEL, striking him on the head with a club and inflicting a severe scalp wound. The assailant was arrested.

SARAH BANKS, of No. 227 Chrystie-street, was committed yesterday by Justice SCOTT, on a charge of stealing a gold watch from DAVID M. PARKER.

JOHN LUNDY, a clerk in the employ of JOHN H. EGGERS, No. 7 Varick-street, was sent with $46 to pay freight charges to the cashier of the Union State Line. He did not pay the money, nor return to his employer. Saturday he was arrested, and although he claimed to have lost the money he was committed.

Among the minor cases at the Tombs, yesterday, was that of THOMAS KELLY, who was committed for striking ADAM PRICE, of No. 119 Hudson-street, on the head with a stone; and THOMAS CLARK, who was also committed for striking GEORGE GARNER, of No. 116 Seventh-street.

Yesterday morning WM. STREET, while drunk, endeavored to stab his wife, but after much difficulty he was arrested and taken to the station-house.

HANNAH CADY was thrown down stairs last evening at her residence, No. 102 Cannon-street, by her husband, and severely injured. She was sent to Bellevue Hospital, and her husband locked up.

Wanted—Facts from the Brooklyn Eagle.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The readers of the Brooklyn Eagle are treated every day to editorials showing that the Water Board are honest, faithful and upright men, although poor, and that our affairs are so admirably managed that any citizen can see the cost of repairing any street, and get full items in regard to the same by applying to the Water Board. I deny that the accounts are public. I have been to the Water Board several times to inspect them, and, when excuses would go no further, was informed that no papers would be shown unless upon an order of the Court. The counsel for the Association for contesting the assessments for the repairing of streets stated the same.

MARTIN KALBFLEISCH, the Mayor, says it is impossible for him to find out anything of the amounts expended by the Water Board. The Corporation Manual is silent, and does not give the names of any employes. Will the Eagle be good enough to tell us these things, and also publish the pay-roll, the names and number of the employes and their other occupations; also the number of Brooklyn reporters that receive pay as inspectors, and the amounts paid to subsidize the papers? If the Eagle denies that this Water Board was modeled after the New-York Ring, or that the Occasio Club is not modeled after the American Club, and for the same purpose, or that one act passed this last Legislature for this City was not for private plunder, and not for public good, we will give facts and names.

We would ask if the Water Board did not advertise for proposals for repairing Court-street with Guidet "patent pavement from asphaltus legally authorized to lay the same?" When was this pavement patented, and who are these parties legally authorized to lay the same? One of the Board informed the writer that there was no patent on this pavement. Yet they continue to advertise this fraud, and to give GUIDET & Co. about $1 per yard more than the pavement can be laid for, and probably allow them, as they did in Atlantic-street, fifty cents per yard gratuity for putting sand under the pavement.

In order to obtain a petition to pave Court-street first they advertised that they had determined to do the work, then sent a person round to the owners to get names for laying Nicholson pavement. The next day another employe came along with a petition to some owner and said: "I suppose you see in the papers that the Water Board are going to pave Court-street with Nicolson pavement, and we are afraid there is a majority in favor of it. Now if you don't want to be swindled, and have a pavement that has worn out in Broad and Mercer streets, New-York, in three years, and that cost in Atlantic-street in this city, over $7 a yard, or $656 66 per twenty-five feet lot, you had better sign this petition for Guidet pavement. This will last forever, and if you don't get this petition signed right away we are sure to have the Nicolson. The owner says: "Well, if we are to have a new pavement, I prefer stone." Inspector replies: "We must hurry up, and head these Nicolson fellows off," and the owner signs.

The Eagle knows that the TIMES is the only paper in these two cities that has the honesty to look after the people's interest, and that the Eagle's screeching is only a decoy to cover up the swindles perpetrated by the Brooklyn Ring. The citizens know well they cannot trust a subsidized paper, and they are grateful that the TIMES makes the Eagle screech unceasingly, "Let us alone."

The Game of Fly Loo.

The story about the "new" game of fly loo is in its annual rounds again. The version is this year given by the Cincinnati Commercial, and is as follows:

"The detestable canker that destroys men's souls had made its appearance among the little community of pleasure seekers at the Yellow Springs, under the auspices of a celebrated Alderman of this city, who is notorious for the alacrity with which he will bet on anything, from the juvenile game of 'pick or po' to the relative length of straws to be plucked out of a hay-stack, and in the enticing form of 'Fly Loo.' It is in testimony that every afternoon from twenty to thirty of the very flower of our respectable population retire to a private room, and under locks and bolts give themselves up to this satanic game. The players solemnly seat themselves around a table, each with a lump of sugar, and a card bearing in plain letters his responsible name and representing so much money in front of him, and, with a silent gravity that would become a watch-meeting, and the fly-concealed anxiety of men staking their all on the coast of a die, await the advent of the first fly. On the buzzing insect comes, sweeping now toward this lump, then veering off toward that, sending thrill after thrill of anticipated triumph or expected disappointment through the frames of the anxious watchers. At last the object is over. The atomic insect, all unconscious of the important part he is playing, the reversals of fortune that he is causing, settles lightly upon a particular lump of saccharine, and twenty-nine disgusted men lose from $5 to $25 each, while the delighted representative of the sweet morsel chosen, scoops in the whole pile. This decides one 'hand' at the dignified game which has run 'pokers,' 'euchre,' and 'seven up' completely away from the Springs, and another and another 'pot,' and 'pots' ad infinitum are made up and won and lost in the close, hot room, while the deserted ladies are languishing for a little male conversation below."

The representatives of the Turner societies from distant cities were entertained in Williamsburg yesterday, and were escorted to all points of interest in the city. Last evening a vocal and instrumental concert was given in Turn Hall under the direction of CARL EISNER, and an immense multitude attended it.
